

FOUL PLAY SUSPECTED

MAN FOUND DEAD

Charles G. Somers Was Well Known
Constable and Interpreter

Charles G. Somers, the well known constable and Polish interpreter at police court was found dead in the hallway of his home, 52 Gorham street early this morning, and although the police are of the opinion that death was due to an accident, his wife and several of his friends believe he met with foul play.

The body was found shortly after five o'clock this morning at the foot of the stairs near the entrance door and it was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker J. H. McDermott, where after an examination it was found there was a large bruise over the left eye, a blue mark on the bridge of the nose and a cut on the left side of the head.

According to Mrs. Somers, Charles left his home shortly after 7 o'clock last night and that was the last she saw of him until this morning when she found his body at the foot of the stairs in the front hallway. She said he was a man of good habits and never used intoxicants. She arose at 5 o'clock this morning and discovered her husband was not in the house. She then went down stairs for coal, and when she reached the top of the first flight of stairs, she was dumbfounded to see the body of her husband lying in a pool of blood at the foot of the stairs. The feet were on the second step of the stairs, while the body was lying on the floor with the head turned almost under one shoulder. Mrs. Somers called for help, and Peter O'Hagan, who occupies the second floor of the house was soon on the spot and after notifying the police he called in Undertaker McDermott, who removed the body to his warerooms.

Wife Suspects Foul Play
Mrs. Somers who talks very little English said to a reporter of The Sun this morning that her husband was a sober man, especially during Lent, when he would not take a drop of liquor. He occasionally took a glass of wine she said, but never drank anything else. She said he was of a quiet disposition, but she really believed he had enemies on account of his business, that of constable, and she is under the impression that he was struck by an unknown person who made good his escape.

A Reasonable
Precaution

There are many little things it is wise to do. One of them is to carry a box of Dyspepsis with you wherever you go. The chances are that you will not need such a remedy. To be without it, when the stomach has become sour, or something has been eaten that the stomach for some reason or other cannot digest without help, is to be in an uncomfortable situation, to say the least, and it may become serious. Dyspepsis are put up in three sizes. The 10c size is a handsome aluminum bonbonniere which is very conveniently carried in the pocket. Many persons buy this size and refill it from the 50c or $1 size, which they buy eventually, if not at the same time, for to use these digestive tablets once is to adopt them as a remedy for all common stomach troubles.

Dyspepsis are prepared only by C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all druggists.

The neighbors of Mr. Somers who have known him for years corroborate her assertions. Mr. O'Hagan heard a noise in the building shortly after 11 o'clock last night but he paid no attention to it as he thought the employees of the store on the first floor were handling heavy packages of goods. Undertaker McDermott who slept in the rear of his shop last night also heard a noise in the hallway, but he paid no attention to it.

Simon Kroftin who conducts a grocery store at 10 Winter street, said this morning that Somers was in his place last night and remained there until shortly before 11 o'clock at which time he left for home. Mr. Kroftin said Somers as far as he could see had not taken a drink and was all right. The policeman of the beat in which Somers lived, 11 o'clock and he, like others, says he was all right.

May Have Fallen
It is possible that Somers met with an accident, for the stairs have a very steep incline and a bad turn at the top. Somers who was in the habit of climbing the stairs in a hurry, might have missed his footing at the curve at the top of the stairs and rolled down stairs with fatal result.

CHARLES G. SOMERS,
Victim of Accident or Foul Play.

Those who believe there was foul play say that Somers must have been struck when he reached the top of the stairs, where a large hallway leads to the rear door of the building. However, Supt. Redmond Welch of the police department is of the opinion that the man fell down stairs and fractured his skull.

He was 35 years of age, and leaves to mourn his loss besides a bereaved wife, two children, Willie and Maudie, his father and mother and several brothers and sisters in Russia.

Deceased was a constant attendant of the Lithuanian Catholic church and was very prominent in the St. Joseph society and other fraternal orders connected with the church.

The body is still at the morgue of Undertaker McDermott where it was viewed this morning by Medical Examiner Joe V. Adams, who is to perform an autopsy this afternoon.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

Met Today and Approved
Bills

The municipal council met this forenoon for the purpose of approving monthly bills. The meeting was scheduled for 9:30 o'clock but the bills were not ready for examination until 11:30. The council, however, succeeded in going through them in quick order and were done with them in less than an hour. It was a case of short stories and none of the bills was held up.

THE MINERS' STRIKE

Both Parties Eager to Settle it

LONDON, March 6.—The continued meetings of the disputants in the coal trade war were interpreted as indicating a growing desire of both parties to find a way out of the difficulties. While the formal reports issued do not give any evidence of material relief of the tension there is an increasing belief that the executive committee of the miners' federation received a wider mandate from the men during the week-end empowering it to negotiate with the government on the subject of the minimum wage schedule. Any relaxation of the rigidity of the miners' demands would offer a hopeful basis for a speedy agreement.

C.M.A.C. MEETING

Was Addressed by Rev.
Fr. Ouellette, O.M.I.

A largely attended meeting of the C. M. A. C. was held last night with President Joseph Fayette in the chair. Considerable business was transacted, and two new members, Mr. J. Chandonnet and Dr. J. E. Robillard were initiated. The reports of the different committees were very favorable, and the members voted to contribute a substantial sum of money for a member in distress.

The meeting also voted unanimously to subscribe for The Sun. Present at the meeting was the chaplain, Rev. Jerome Ouellette, O. M. I., who at the close of the meeting addressed the members in the interest of the society. The reverend gentleman spoke at length on the affairs of the association. Referring to a statement made by a local official who said he looked after 5000 parochial school children without the least compensation, he said that the salary paid this transient officer was for looking after all the schools in the city without exception. Messrs. Joseph L. Lamoureux, Joseph E. Lambert and Joseph Harvey also made interesting remarks.

FIRE IN CLOSET

An alarm from box 225 at 1:01 o'clock this morning summoned a portion of the fire department to a slight blaze in a clothes closet in a house in Lewis street. The fire was extinguished before any material damage had been done. The cause of the fire is unknown.

SEVERAL FIGHTS

Between Strike Pickets and the Mill
Operatives in Lawrence

LAWRENCE, March 6.—Fourteen arrests of strikers and strike sympathizers were made just before the opening of the textile mills today. The morning was the liveliest of the week, and although a number of clashes between the pickets and those returning to work occurred no person was seriously injured. The Industrial Workers of the World were able to maintain most of their strength and many former employees of the American Woolen Co.'s mills remain out. It is estimated that about 3000 strikers have joined the operatives at work in the Lawrence mills this week, but many of those who went back were not members of the Industrial Workers. The most serious occurrence this morning was at the gates of the Arlington mills, where an Italian on his way to work was assaulted. The assailant was arrested. Nearly all of the arrests were for minor offenses.

A CONFERENCE

OF MILL OFFICIALS AND INDUSTRIAL WORKERS MAY BE HELD

LAWRENCE, March 6.—John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America, in a statement today said: "Our international union will see that no more money in relief is paid out after two days to those who refused to return to work under the concessions offered. The people over whom we have jurisdiction have accepted the conditions. The money on hand will be used to relieve persons in want."

The Industrial Workers today received a letter from Chairman George H. Ellis of the legislative committee on conciliation. In which it was suggested that a committee of strikers meet at the state house tomorrow with officials of the American Woolen Co. The suggestion has not been acted on officially.

THE LOOMFIXERS

AT A MEETING VOTED TO RETURN TO WORK

LAWRENCE, March 6.—Quietness prevailed during the hours preceding the opening of the textile mills today. Picketing was maintained by the strikers on a larger proportion than yesterday but there were no attempts at intimidation by members of the endless chain of picketers who lined the approaches to the mills. The strikers apparently maintained most of their strength. The most important addition to the ranks of returning operatives was the loomfixers, in accordance with action taken at a meeting last night to accept the five per cent wage increase offered by the mill owners. Twelve arrests were made by the police during the early hours of today but all were for minor offenses, including the eating of "beach" by the pickets to several returning workers. Half of the number taken into custody comprised women who had in their possession a mixture of pepper, sand and spice. It was estimated that during the past three days not more than 3000 persons have resumed work in the factories. The main body of strikers, it is thought, intend to hold out for further concessions on the part of the mill operators. The latter, however, declare that in giving their employees a five per cent increase they have gone beyond what they can actually afford and that a further increase in wages is out of the question.

Picketers, under the direction of Mrs. Annie Weigand, held forth in South Lawrence in the early morning but later marched on Essex street until they were dispersed by the police.

400 STRIKERS

ATTACKED A TEXTILE MEETING IN LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, March 6.—Four hundred strikers marched through Broadway last night and descended without warning upon a meeting of woolen and cotton yarn workers. The latter were in session to receive a charter as a branch of the United Textile Workers of America. A number of the strikers made their way into the hall, and a small riot started before they were finally driven out.

Meanwhile a police call had been sent in and as the men were retreating from the hall a squad of officers arrived and drove them away. Twice smaller parties returned and stood in front of the hall hooting and blissing until driven away by the police.

THE BOULEVARD WELLS

Have Received Good Cleaning Out and Water Tastes Better

If the city water at your home looks clearer and tastes better it is due to the fact that the old wells at the boulevard have received a good cleaning out.

The work of cleaning the wells was begun several days ago and will be finished tomorrow. Sixteen men have been working on the wells and the average number of wells cleaned in a day was 18. The wells received a thorough pumping out and the screens were well cleaned. The purging given the wells not only improved the condition of the water but increased the pumping capacity from 3,500,000 gallons a day to nearly 5,000,000 gallons. The work of cleaning the wells will swell the water department pay roll but it is money well spent. The reservoir was a little low before the wells were cleaned and now there is more than 20 feet of water in it.

Steel For New Reservoir

A car load of steel bars to be used for the reinforcement of the new reservoir in Centralville is on its way to Lowell from Pittsburgh, Pa. The work of bending and shaping the steel will be done by the water department. All work connected with the reservoir with the exception of the cement work will be done by city labor. Cyrus Barton has the contract for the cement work and is supposed to begin operations about March 15.

SONG RECITAL

WAS GIVEN AT THE KIRK STREET
CHURCH

An interesting song festival was given in the vestry of the Kirk Street church last night for the benefit of the Women's association of the church. The attendance was very large and the affair was very successful. The songs were all favorites, and were interspersed by a series of moving pictures beautifully costumed and set in a great portrait frame. The singing, which was by members of the choir, Mrs. Wm. G. Spence, Mrs. Arthur C. Spaulding and Charles H. Howard, was behind the scenes. "The Rites of the Sages and those who posed for them" was the first. "Spain" was the music for which was "The White Cockade," as played when the Americans marched forth to meet the British at Concord.

BOARD OF TRADE

TO HOLD MEETING IN INTEREST OF PROPOSED BOULEVARD

held to hold a meeting Friday night for the purpose of furthering the legislation of the proposed boulevard between this city and Lawrence. It was decided to hold a general meeting of the Lowell Automobile league, also the automobile owners and drivers.

It was also voted at the meeting to instruct the automobile league committee of legislation and highways to co-operate with the similar committee of the board of trade on matters where both organizations were working for the same purposes. The same plan was voted for the committee on traffic regulations and the league's committee will seek to aid the board of trade committee in securing the passage of the city traffic regulation ordinance by the present city government.

Owing to recent illness Treasurer Edward H. Carney asked to be relieved, but it was thought best for the present to retain him in office as treasurer, and to appoint a new treasurer.

ART ASSOCIATION

TO SOLICIT MONEY FOR THE WHISTLER HOUSE

The finance committee of the Lowell Art association met yesterday at the rooms of the Union National bank, and ways and means were discussed for reducing the fixed charges of the society by eliminating the mortgage debt on the Whistler house in Worthen street.

The house is mortgaged for $4600 and in addition there are notes outstanding for about $2000 more, secured only by the signatures of four of the creditors who are personally responsible for that sum.

At the meeting steps were taken for the active solicitation of aid in the form of direct contributions from the friends of the association, in the hope of raising before the annual meeting in April nearly $6000 to remove these obligations and leave the society free to go.

WOMAN BEAT OUT FLAMES WITH HER HANDS
MALDEN, March 6. — Miss Julia

Mrs. A. A. West at 17 Rockland avenue was seriously burned shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon while ironing in the kitchen. The woman had placed a light garment near the stove and the garment caught fire, the flames spreading quickly to other clothes.

Miss Washington grabbed the burning clothes and attempted to beat out the flames. She was unable to do this, however, and her clothing quickly caught fire.

The noise attracted the attention of Mrs. West, who ran to the kitchen and beat out the flames on the woman's clothing with her bare hands, being quite badly burned. Miss Washington received severe burns about the hands and face and but for the timely aid of Mrs. West she would probably have been burned to death. A still alarm

SALISBURY BEACH

Hearing on Two Bills to Make it a Public Reservation

A hearing was made at the state house yesterday upon two bills before the committee intended to make a public reservation of what is now known as Salisbury beach. One bill, that of Rep. A. Franklin Priest of Haverhill, provides that the Metropolitan park commissioners may take in fee or otherwise, by purchase, gift or eminent domain as a public reservation, that portion of Salisbury beach, in the town of Salisbury, between the New Hampshire state boundary, the Atlantic ocean, Merrimack river and marshes and that the commission may expend not exceeding $500,000 and that the town of Salisbury shall be deemed part of the Metropolitan parks district. The other bill, that of John O. Evans simply provides that the portion of Salisbury beach in the town of Salisbury is made a state reserve.

For these two bills Rep. Priest submitted a substitute bill for the setting of the land bounded by the Atlantic ocean, the Hampton and Merrimack rivers, the marsh lands and the state line of New Hampshire and Massachusetts, as a reservation to be placed in the hands of a commission of three persons to serve without pay who shall administer the territory as a public reservation, shall sell cottage sites, grubs and sand and may lease and re-lease the same at such terms sufficient to yield an income to defray the cost of maintenance of the reservation. The bill provides that the state shall issue bonds to the amount of $300,000, the income to be expended in carrying out the purposes of the act. The commission is to appoint the police for the reservation. The town of Salisbury may assess and tax all buildings thereon and shall provide schooling for the inhabitants thereof. No liquor licenses shall be granted within such reservation.

This latter bill, if it should be felt that the territory is too remote from the jurisdiction of the Metropolitan park commission, Mr. Priest said would be acceptable to all the petitioners. Rep. Priest opened the hearing by a review of the history of the "commoners."

If the committee decides it is going to report favorably on a proposition of this kind, said Rep. Priest, it is a very easy matter for us to get together on a new draft bill. He described the land in controversy as a little strip of coast land between the Merrimack and Hampton rivers which virtually an island. In 1640 Salisbury received its grant. Not much further is known concerning it except that in 1816 or 1817 a certain number of persons got together, numbering about forty, claiming to be the heirs of the ancient commoners, and claimed the beach as their property. The town of Salisbury appeared to have recognized his claim for it taxed this beach land to these commoners for a period of sixty to seventy years and collected the taxes from them. Not much was done with the beach, however, for years after that and it was in 1850 when the first cottages were built on the beach. Development of the property was slow until 1880 when money was spent in making Salisbury beach a resort and it became popular. The cottagers tried to buy or lease the land from the old time commoners, but they could not get either, because of a provision that unless two-thirds of the commoners were present no lease could be granted. At this time the original commoners or survivors were very few and those who did survive were scattered. About one thousand cottages have been built on Salisbury beach; the land itself is valued at about $80,000 while the buildings and cottages are worth a million dollars.

THE HIGHLAND CLUB

Will Elect Officers in April

The members of the Highland club held a largely attended meeting at the well appointed quarters of the organization last evening. President Maurice M. Vallant called the meeting to order. The committee in charge of the nominations of the officers reported, and the names of the candidates will soon be posted. The regular meeting of the club will be held on the first Tuesday of April. At this session the annual election of officers will be held. The names of the candidates as selected by the nominating committee will be posted two weeks before the April meeting.

A NEW REMEDY FOR SKIN TROUBLES

Many skin troubles are not caused by the blood as most people think. External treatment is therefore the most direct and rational way to effect a cure. A chemist who was convinced of this fact found that an extract of the plant Juniperus Oxycedrus was most soothing and healing to an irritated, inflamed or diseased skin. By a special method of treatment this vegetable extract is now combined with other antiseptic, healing ingredients, and is known as Cadum. This new compound has cured thousands of cases of eczema and other distressing skin diseases after other remedies had failed. It stops the terrible itching of eczema at once, and begins healing by the first application. Cadum can be used with confidence in all skin affections of infants and adults. It has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from tormenting and distressing skin diseases. Cadum is different from anything else. It acts quickly upon pimples, sores, ulcers, eruptions, rashes, rough skin, blotches, chafing, scald sores, itching piles, etc. All druggists, 10c and 25c.

THE PROBATE COURT

Session Held in This City Today

The probate court sat in this city this morning with Justice McIntire as presiding judge. The first matter brought up was the continued case of Mrs. Thomas J. Whittell, who petitioned the court for the custody of her grandchild, Daisy B. Beaulieu, daughter of Charles Edward Beaulieu. The last witness on the petitioner's side, Agent Charles P. Richardson of the Humane society, was heard and he was followed by the Misses Beaulieu, sisters of Mr. Beaulieu, and two other witnesses. The court will convene again tomorrow.

DRAINAGE CANAL

To be Inspected by Sec'y Stimson

CHICAGO, March 5.—To the city of Chicago the most important feature of the visit of Secretary of War Henry D. Stimson is his inspection today of the drainage canal. The trip was planned because of the request of the city and sanitary district to extract 10,000 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Michigan. It is claimed this much is necessary to properly dilute the sewage of the city. The district now has the right to take 4167 feet a second from the lake. Unless the request is granted it is claimed that the fish in the Illinois river will be killed.

COL. ROOSEVELT

BEGAN HIS WORK AS A JUROR TODAY

MINNEOLA, L. I., March 6.—For the first time in his life Col. Roosevelt served today as a juror at the county courthouse here. He is earning $2 a day.

When Col. Roosevelt reached Minneola this morning in his automobile from Oyster Bay he found a tribe of reporters, photographers and people of the village waiting to see him. When the court opened for the day Justice Putnam of the supreme court, the presiding judge, announced that the case which had been continued from yesterday would take up most of today's session.

It was unlikely that Col. Roosevelt would be called to sit in a case today, the court officers said, but owing to the fact that the present case might be completed in time to necessitate the selection of another jury today the jurors were not excused. Col. Roosevelt accordingly had to put in the time as best he could. He was led into the grand jury room, where he settled down in a chair with a book. Col. Roosevelt was asked if he would comment on Secretary Stimson's speech in Chicago last night in support of President Taft.

"I don't care to say anything about that," he replied.

The colonel was somewhat annoyed at the persistent attention of the camera men, who followed him in squads with every step. "It's awfully hard," said he, "to smile and look pleasant when your picture is taken so often."

NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION

WASHINGTON, March 6.—With workers compensation and the prevention of industrial accidents as the subjects of discussion, August Belmont, chairman of the workers' compensation department, presided at the forenoon session of today's meeting of the National Civic Federation. # THE BOARD OF TRADE

Asks Municipal Council to Establish a Public Market

At a meeting of the municipal council held last night a communication from the board of trade recommending the establishment of an open public market at the property adjoining the Lowell police station was read by the mayor.

Other communications included an opinion from City Solicitor J. Joseph Hennessy and had to do with the present pension system. The solicitor says that pensions are legal and cannot be cancelled unless by vote of the legislature. The opinion has reference to pension and police officers who have been pensioned.

There were but two of the four aldermen present when Mayor O'Donnell called to order at 7:50 o'clock. Messrs. Barrett and Donnelly were in their seats and the other two aldermen arrived a little later. Ald. Cummings seemed a bit perturbed and said the meeting had been prematurely called.

This meeting was set for eight o'clock in said, addressing the mayor.

The first matter to be taken up was the petition of the N. E. & C. Co. for a pole location in Pleasant street. It was an adjourned hearing held for the benefit of the remonstrants who by some misunderstanding did not appear at the previous hearing.

Remonstrants Were Heard

Peter Cavanaugh was the first remonstrant to be heard. He said he was opposed to the petition because it meant the putting in of a pole directly in front of his door. He said it would be a public obstruction and would mar the present fine appearance of the street. He said that the location of a pole there is as unnecessary as it would be unsightly.

Mr. Edward J. Gallagher, residing at the corner of Boston and Pleasant streets, appeared as a remonstrant against granting any pole locations in that section of the street. The plans, he said, called for a pole on the sidewalk directly in front of his door on Pleasant street. A pole is a nuisance to the neighborhood. It brings a nuisance to the spot, attracting flies and the flies carry disease. The location of poles in the sidewalk there would be an obstruction to travel and a disfigurement which the board should not authorize. He suggested that where streets run parallel and in close proximity, the company should run its poles in the rear between the two streets. This one line of poles would serve for High street and Pleasant street; another line could be similarly run on the boundary between Concord and Pleasant streets. Thus these streets might be relieved of all the telephone poles. This custom is followed in other cities where the beauty of the public streets is regarded of prime importance. It should be adopted where practicable in this city.

Mr. Patrick Clark said he was opposed to the location of poles on that part of the street. They would damage the street and sidewalks, which are now in excellent condition.

The following communication from the Lowell board of trade was read and placed on file:

Lowell, Mass., March 5, 1912.
To His Honor, the Mayor and Members of the Municipal Council, Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen: Upon the recommendation of the executive committee, the directors of the Lowell board of trade voted unanimously to recommend to the municipal council of the city of Lowell the establishment of an open public market at the property controlled by the city adjoining the Lowell police station.

The plan decided upon was to set apart one day each week in order that the farmers and merchants might offer for sale their merchandise.

It is hardly necessary to outline the basis and scope of this institution and we feel that the accommodation and convenience to the public is such as to warrant the undertaking of the project.

It is earnestly hoped that this matter will commend itself to your consideration and approval.

Respectfully yours,
Lowell Board of Trade,
John H. Murphy, Secretary.

E. H. Merder petitioned for permission to keep store, use and sell produce at 515 Moody street. There were no remonstrants and on motion of Alderman Cummings the petition was granted.

City Solicitor On Pensions

The mayor then read the following opinion from the city solicitor relative to pensions:

Once adopted by vote of the people or by vote of the city council, a pension law remains in operation until repealed by the legislature; local authorities have not the power of repeal.

This, in substance, is the opinion handed down by City Solicitor J. Joseph Hennessy, in response to a request from the city council for information on the subject. The opinion has reference to pension and police officers who have been pensioned, but does not touch upon the question of whether or not the pension of former Superintendent of Police William H. Moffatt should continue in force. The city solicitor states that he has not been asked to pass upon the question of the legality of the Moffatt pension.

The opinion is as follows:

Office of City Solicitor,
Lowell, March 5, 1912.
To the Municipal Council, City of Lowell.

Gentlemen:—The opinion of the city solicitor is requested upon the following propositions:

"Whether or not the pension now being allowed to police officers are justifiable according to the proper interpretation of the law. Also as to whether or not the pension act can be revoked at the pleasure of the council."

The city solicitor is of the opinion that the law governing pensions to police officers is justifiable, insofar as the constitutionality of such a law is concerned, and there can be no revocation, repeal or annulment of that law by the municipal council.

The legislature of this commonwealth has plenary law-making power, over all its subjects whether pertaining to persons or things within its territorial jurisdiction, either to introduce new laws or repeal the old, unless prohibited expressly or by implication by the federal constitution or limited or restrained by its own.

Every legislative body, however, may modify or abolish the acts passed by itself or its predecessors.

There is not, in the opinion of the city solicitor, any impediment to the constitutionality of the police pension law. It is competent for the legislature by constitutional intent to make the operation of a law affecting a particular locality dependent upon the acceptance of the corporate body of the city, and it is in no wise repugnant to sound legislative policy that a law, general in its scope, and of common interest to the whole commonwealth if the provisions embrace the whole subject and the whole class of it, and if the subject has uniform operation throughout the commonwealth.

For a law to be constitutional there must be no provision in it that would exclude or impede a uniform operation upon the whole subject matter.

The legislature of this commonwealth has itself declared what the law shall be in relation to pensioning policemen, when it shall take effect and make effect and when contingency shall happen to it; the acceptance of the law by the city council; it took effect by force of the legislative will.

The city of Lowell did not need to accept the provisions of the pension act in relation to policemen, but having done so, it precluded itself from changing or altering or repealing the law, the right being wholly and alone with the legislature.

The legislature of the commonwealth is the sole judge as to whether an emergency or such cause exists as requires the enactment of a law, and in the absence of any constitutional restriction, if it makes a law there is no authority in the government which can make it void, and in determining the constitutionality of an act every presumption is in favor of the validity of the enactment; for the legislature imparts a legal validity to every social and business relation that may be deemed conducive to the well-being and happiness of the governed, based on the presumption that the legislature of the commonwealth will do no wrong and will pass no unjust laws.

Respectfully submitted,
J. Joseph Hennessy,
City Solicitor.

Col. Carmichael's Appointment

A communication from the state civil service commission to the city clerk giving notice of the appointment of Col. James H. Carmichael as local secretary of the commission was read and placed on file.

The Star Electric company had a communication relative to contracts made by it with the city of Lowell, in which the company agreed to protect the city against all suits arising from alleged infringements on other patents.

The letter was referred to Commissioner Barrett.

On March 26, 1911, a carriage owned by Dr. J. H. Sparks was damaged by the committee on "new charter" and a bill was sent in for $23.45. A report from City Clerk Flynn was to the effect that the owner of the carriage had come in collision with some obstacle. The bill was referred to the legal department.

Thomas J. Regan, chairman, and Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the legislative committee of the Trades & Labor council, asked that the legality of the election of William H. Hilton as registrar of voters be investigated. On motion of Commissioner Cummings, the request was referred to the city solicitor.

A letter was read from W. C. Hutchinson, state fire warden, requesting an appointment to the local office early in March so that the state organization may be perfected without delay. The communication was filed.

Edward J. Tierney asked by letter that the council re-open the assessors' investigation, and the request was referred to the commissioner of finance.

Permission was granted to the Bay State Street railway to relocate poles in Gorham street near Weed street.

Burial of the Poor

Commissioner Cummings called attention to the result of an examination of lack accounts in the cemeteries department. This showed that from January 1, 1907 to January 1, 1912, the sum of $721 had been charged up against the charity department for burials of persons without relatives able to pay. He moved that this charge be cancelled, and at the suggestion of the mayor, the motion was amended to read that the charge be made in such cases.

Commissioner Cummings moved that the sum of $357.75 be paid to Contractor Twomey for work done on the Race street engine house, this amount to settle Mr. Twomey's claim against the city.

E. B. Pierson had a letter before the council, addressed to Commissioner Donnelly. It contained the suggestion that in the event that the city has not the right to string a wire across one of its streets, recourse be had to the state gas and electric lighting commission with the idea of securing the right. The letter was filed.

Commissioner Donnelly said he had received from two departments to dispose of old material, and he didn't want to go ahead with these until the municipal council had taken action. Reference was made to the charter, which is to the effect that no property can be disposed of without the approval of the council. Commissioner Donnelly said he had sold old junk at 40 cents a barrel, and Commissioner Brown said he had sold some crushed stone, not knowing about the provision of the charter. The two transactions were ratified, and Commissioner Donnelly's two requisitions were approved.

Mayor O'Donnell called attention to an invitation from Arthur Beharrell to attend the automobile show.

It was voted to adjourn until this morning at 9 o'clock, for the approval of bills and the council will hold its next regular meeting Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

MAN INJURED

AUTO AND WAGON WRECKED IN CRASH

SPRINGFIELD, March 5.—George Short, a milk dealer of 56 Montmorency street, received a broken ankle and severe bruises last evening when a two-horse team he was driving into this city from Granby figured in a collision with a large touring car, owned by J. J. Avery of Worcester, near the Plainfield street dry bridge, wrecking both wagon and automobile and killing one of the horses.

Ralph S. Hall was driving the automobile and was accompanied by Frank R. Norton, both men belonging in Worcester. They escaped with slight bruises.

Crates containing 270 dozen eggs were rendered a total loss, 100 pounds of butter and 120 quarts of milk in the wagon were destroyed and 15 chickens liberated in the neighborhood as the result of the collision.

MUCH LOOT FOUND

IN THE HOME OF SOUTH NORWALK FAMILY

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., March 5.—Mrs. Nellie Anderson and her two sons and two daughters were arrested here yesterday charged with wholesale larceny and all were jailed or lined in the local court yesterday afternoon. The Anderson home looked like the den of the Forty Thieves when it was searched. There was silverware, rugs, lace curtains and the like from the plunder from clothes lines from all over the place, the wife nearly killing one room to the ceiling.

Mrs. Anderson was given 30 days in jail and fined $7 and costs for one specified offense which took place last summer when she sent her daughter Hilda to the Gorham summer home and had her sack it. Hilda received a similar sentence, while Lillian, Louis and Charles Anderson, Ross Boyce and Floyd Jones were all fined as being parties in the gang.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of Betsy Ross circle was held last night and it proved to be a very enjoyable affair. An oyster supper was served during the early part of the evening, after which an entertainment program was carried out. The contributors to the program were: Mrs. G. M. Brookway, piano solo; readings by Sisters Washburn, Baldwin, Thissell, Clark and Richardson. The supper was under the direction of Lizzie M. Clark. Considerable routine business was transacted.

Foresters' Meeting

The deputy grand chief rangers of the different courts of Foresters of America in this city met last night and made the final arrangements for the union meeting which is to be held under the auspices of Court City of Lowell, at which the grand chief ranger and suite will be present.

NO CASCARET USER EVER HAS HEADACHE

A 10 cent box will keep your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh for months

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poison, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't take the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means fisble cleanliness and a clear head for months. Ask any of the millions of Cascaret users if they ever have headache.

chief rangers representing them are as follows:

Connelly; Court Dinna, John W. Downing.

HEAD OF COLLEGE

Says Young Men Should Get Early Start

CHICAGO, March 5.—Pres. Harry Pratt Judson of the University of Chicago in his annual report has announced a novel plan for reorganization of that institute which, he said, would place men in business two years earlier than at present. Pres. Judson asserts that the university's registration only 10 years after its foundation has reached the record-breaking figure of 6466 students, regardless of continuous stiffening of the scholastic requirements.

Pres. Judson outlines two radical innovations in the scheme of the institution. These are:

1. Furnishing college education to students at the age of 18, by cutting two years from the elementary school, one year from the high school course, and inserting a junior college course of three years.

2. Extending opportunities for college education to thousands of Chicago young men and women, now forced to forego such training by means of the foundation of new schools and reorganization of existing colleges.

Above the college, according to the report, would be the university, which would offer an undergraduate course of two years and post-graduate courses of two or more years. This would give the student the bachelor's degree at the age of 20, and if he desired to specialize in one or another of the professions, he could complete his work in from three to five years more, so that he could be engaged in the actual practice of his profession at the age of 25.

To fill out the details of Pres. Judson's plan a number of Chicago's wealthy men will be asked to perpetuate their names in the foundation of new schools and the donation of new buildings.

BURLINGTON, Vt., March 5.—Montpelier, the capital city of the state, voted against license in the annual election yesterday. The city has been in the "wet" column but one year. Six towns, including Colchester where the liquor selling has always been favored, also swung into the "dry" column. As a result there will be but 22 of the 216 cities and towns in the state where the open saloon is legalized during the coming year.

Of the six cities, St. Albans, Burlington, Vergennes and Rutland voted in favor, and Montpelier and Barre against license. In St. Johnsbury and Hyde Park towns in Caledonia county, the smallpox quarantine prevented the holding of elections.

All of the "wet" towns and cities are on the west side of the state. In four counties, Orange, Orleans, Lunenburg and Grand Isle, every town voted against license.

Few municipal officers were elected, it being an off year.

MAN IS MISSING

Probably Was Burned to Death

GREAT BARRINGTON, March 5.—Louis Peck, about 39 years old, is believed to have lost his life in a fire which destroyed a large house, four large barns and several head of cattle on the farm of his father, Elvin Peck, last night. The young man had been afflicted with spinal trouble for several years, and it is believed that his condition prevented him from escaping. No trace of him could be found after the fire.

The cause of the fire is unknown. The farm was formerly owned by Judge Rowley.

Two families occupied the house and most of the furniture was saved, but besides the horses very little could be taken from the barns.

The loss was about $15,000.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 5.—Early today the returns from more than half the city of Seattle give George A. Cotterill, municipal ownership and single tax candidate for mayor, a majority of 70 votes over Hiram Gill, "open town" candidate. The result is in doubt.

THREE LIVES LOST

Men Trapped in Room Perished at a Fire in Quincy Last Night

QUINCY, March 6.—Three men perished in a little attic room in the boarding house conducted by Alexander Proverb at 651 Washington street were burned to death in a fire which was probably caused by an overturned kerosene lamp and two others narrowly escaped death from the flames.

The dead men are Daniel Graham, 34 years old, a riveter employed by the Fore River Shipbuilding company; Daniel Leary, 35 years old, a riveter in North Weymouth, and John Kelly, 33 years old, who was employed as a house carpenter in North Weymouth, just across the river from the shipbuilding yard.

The men rescued are Charles McDonald, 40 years old, a brother of Patrick McDonald, who worked with his brother in the fire originated. Charles McDonald lived in another boarding house close by and called upon his brother and roommates last night. There were about 15 boarders in the house in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Proverb and their children, Gladstone, aged 15, and Olive, 9 years old.

Landlord Gives Warning

About 9:30 last evening Mr. Proverb, who was on the lower floor of the house, smelled smoke and began an investigation. At the same time John Ryan, a boarder who was in the bathroom, smelled smoke also, and upon climbing toward the ceiling saw the flames over his head.

Perceiving that the upper part of the house was a mass of flames, Ryan ran downstairs and told Mr. Proverb. The lodging-house keeper ran upstairs to the attic, shouting as he ran, to arouse the boarders.

The halls and the rooms on the upper floors were filled with smoke and the flames were spreading with startling rapidity through the walls. Notwithstanding the great danger to which he was exposed, Proverb continued groping his way until he reached the landing leading to the attic.

There the heat was like that of a furnace and the smoke was so dense that he was unable to see. He crawled along the floor to the door of the room occupied by Graham, Leary and McDonald, and as he made his way through the inferno he heard a groan. He could not see the man, but feeling about him on the floor he came in contact with the body of a man who was sinking into unconsciousness.

Drags Charles to Safety

Proverb carried the man from the hallway to the staircase, and, with the utmost difficulty, carried him downstairs, as yet unaware of his identity. When he reached the street, exhausted and almost overcome by the smoke himself, Proverb saw that it was Charles McDonald, who was severely burned on the hands and was senseless.

Some of the other boarders who had got into the street took care of McDonald, while Proverb, although faint and gasping from the smoke which he inhaled, went back again to the attic to rescue the others. When he reached the landing at the top of the house, however, he found that it was utterly impossible to enter the room and live.

He called to his boarders, but received no answer. Realizing that he could not hope to go into the attic and come out alive, he staggered downstairs and into the street. As soon as he recovered from the smoke he ran to box 72, a short distance from the house, and gave the alarm.

Forced to Handcuff Lodger

The men of House 4, whose house is near the Proverb house, were on the scene within a moment of two, but the upper part of the building was a mass of flames before they raised a ladder. Meantime Patrolman Thorne, whose route includes Washington street, went into the house as he was informed that some of the lodgers yet remained in their rooms. He heard shouts from the second floor and upon ascending to the room of John Kelly, he found that man at the window looking out into the street as if he were unconscious of his danger.

Thorne spoke to Kelly, who ordered him out of the building. The officer told him that he was in great danger and that he would probably be burned to death if he remained in his room. But Kelly paid no attention to him. Thorne seized him by the arm and strove to lead him to the hall and thence to the street. The lodger resisted violently, however, and Thorne was obliged to use considerable force to restrain him. Kelly struggled so vigorously, however, that Thorne found it necessary to handcuff him before he was able to get him to a place of safety. Kelly was sent to the police station, charged with drunkenness.

LOWELL YOUNG MAN

John H. O'Neill Holds Responsible Position in New York

The news came to this city today that Mr. John H. O'Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah O'Neill of 175 Walker street, this city, is meeting with remarkable success in his position, as assistant curator of the American Museum of Natural History at Seventy-seventh street and Central Park west, New York city. Mr. O'Neill has been in this responsible position since September, 1910.

Mr. O'Neill though only 34 years of age holds one of the most responsible and technical positions in the great museum. He has always been a very industrious young man. He attended the Bartlett school in this city and graduated with high honors. He then entered the Lowell high school. From there he graduated in 1905. He was valedictorian of his class and won a scholarship to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He entered the latter institution at the age of 18. Here he took great interest in his studies and won two more full scholarships and a half one. By these scholarships he attended the institute for three and one-half years gratis. He went the other six months of his course and graduated with a great rank. While at Tech. he made a special study of sanitary conditions and paid particular attention to the course of "Protection of the river and harbor waters from municipal wastes." This is something new and one of the greatest studies of the present time.

So remarkable was the manner in which Young O'Neill grasped the work that Prof. Charles Edward Amory Winslow, M. S. of the faculty of Tech., upon being appointed curator of the museum in New York made the Lowell young man his first assistant. The museum is a most beautiful building and is conducted by wealthy men of New York city.

Mr. O'Neill though connected with the museum but a comparatively short time has made a great impression and has received two voluntary raises in his salary.

The museum was established in 1859 and its principal is to promote natural science and it is in cordial co-operation with all similar institutions throughout the world. Since its establishment great results have been obtained. Particular stress is laid on the purification of the rivers and waters of the country and in the journal that is issued at the museum monthly articles on the above are explained.

While attending Tech. Mr. O'Neill, in company with three other students, went and investigated the water conditions of the waters at Gloucester. They made a report of what they found and their suggestions were later adopted. The city of Gloucester was grateful for the valuable information and paid the young men for their work. Other similar experiments were made by the young man before he received his present position.

In New York he is also considered a valuable instructor and has on several occasions given addresses on his work. One of the most successful lectures that he has given was delivered last summer when he spoke to a number of young lady students at one of the New York colleges. In a recent publication of the Municipal Journal of the museum Mr. O'Neill wrote the article on the use of models by the municipal departments; the purposes for which they may be used, testing principles and the comparative work done in the making of models; cost of the materials and the labor.

Interesting Article

The article is a very interesting one and reads in part as follows:

The department of public health of the American Museum of Natural History of New York deals with that field of natural history which concerns the relation of the human organism to its environment, and in particular with those problems which arise when large numbers of human beings are concentrated on small areas, making necessary new methods of providing for fundamental needs. One of the most difficult and pressing of these problems is the proper disposal of the body wastes. The water-carriage system of sewerage solves this problem as far as the individual dwelling is concerned, but merely passes it along for the community as a whole to solve. The large volumes of polluting material pouring from our cities into streams and harbors not only lower property values, and render objectionable to the senses the places which might serve as a recreation ground and source of pleasure to the people, but may constitute an actual danger to human life and health. As in those instances where one community pollutes the stream which serves another as a source of public water supply. Modern sanitary science, however, offers methods of purifying these wastes, and it is with such methods that a section of the public health exhibit deals.

To the exhibit of the Metropolitan sewerage commission of New York, held at the American Museum in May, 1911, the department of public health at the Museum contributed a series of models showing graphically some of the results of the commission's investigations, the relations of sewerage disposal to the health of New York City, and some of the principal methods of purifying city sewage.

One of the most significant developments of public health work in the last few years has been in the direction of public education and one of the most important methods of instruction is the use of exhibits bringing out desired facts in graphic form. Many state health departments have already made beginnings in the preparation of models to illustrate certain phases of water supply and sewage disposal.

The remainder of the article tells and illustrates the possible dangers to health resulting from unsanitary conditions.

MINERS' DEMANDS

Were Refused by the Coal Operators

NEW YORK, March 6.—The anthracite coal miners' demands for increased pay, recognition of the union, a shorter working day and other changes were unanimously rejected yesterday afternoon by 47 operators. The operators devoted half an hour to consideration of the demands and adjourned sine die after appointing a committee to acquaint the United Mine Workers of America with their decision.

This committee was clothed with full power to act for all the operators and will formulate its reply at a meeting next Monday afternoon for presentation to the miners on Wednesday, March 13. The decisive action of the operators was unexpected. It was believed that the meeting would last several hours and that a compromise course would be suggested. At the conclusion of the meeting, however, one of the operators declared that the adoption of the resolution will not prevent the committee from making a counter-proposition to the miners.

The belief is growing among the operators, he added, that there will be no general strike of 150,000 men in the Pennsylvania fields affected by the decision, but that operators would rather face a general strike than advance wages 20 percent and in consequence be compelled to increase the price of coal.

THE STRIKE SITUATION

It is really amusing to read of an investigation of the Lawrence strike before a committee of congress at which the most damaging witnesses are all socialists from various parts of the country. The great point which the socialists are making against the people of Lawrence is that the police prevented relief committees from taking children out of the city. That implies a breach of law that will give congress a pretext for investigation. The socialists are delighted over the turn affairs have taken and over the failure of the strikers to return to work.

Most of these, it seems, are afraid to return as the picketing system now adopted does not stop at mere persuasion but extends to holding up the people on the streets and, as a girl testified in Washington, tearing the clothes off them to prevent them going to work.

Some of the social workers who come to Lawrence, college professors who never saw the inside of a mill, now know all about it. Some of them talk rank socialism without any real knowledge of the situation beyond the fact that they visited a few families and heard their stories.

The strike is now before congress, and the committee of labor may hold an investigation in Lawrence as the people of the city are anxious for an opportunity to refute the falsehoods given out by the leaders, the social workers and others from distant states.

The people of this state are now awaiting the next move in the Lawrence mill situation. It was confidently hoped that the increase offered by the mills would be accepted by the strikers as a reasonable compromise. It is said to range from 5 to 12 per cent. and to average 8 per cent. The increase, we understand, has been so arranged that it will come in largest amount to those who have the smallest weekly wage, in order, if possible, to afford them a means of living.

It is believed that the operatives would readily return to work were they not prevented by the influence of the leaders from other states.

These leaders, it is clear, do not want the strike settled, and if they can hold the operatives in idleness it may come to a question of closing the mills altogether and letting the operatives seek employment elsewhere.

If the operatives follow the leaders whose aim is revolution they can blame only themselves if they bring about a condition under which they will not be needed in Lawrence and will have to leave the city.

It is a fact that many of the strikers must be in want, but the leaders are apparently satisfied with present conditions as it is stated that they receive large sums daily for the relief of the strikers. Charitable people everywhere are willing to aid honest strikers in distress; but if it appears that the Lawrence operatives are aiding a revolutionary movement, projected by anarchists, then this flow of money from far distant points for the relief of the strikers will soon be cut off.

ROOSEVELT SHOULD WITHDRAW

Already it is apparent that Col. Roosevelt will be the worst beaten candidate of prominence that appeared for a long time if he lets his name go into the republican convention. Indeed he would probably rank merely among the "also runs," and with Roosevelt will go down probably for all time the idea of a third term, consecutive or otherwise, for any candidate. The third term is against the custom that has prevailed since the days of Washington. There was a movement to give Grant a third term when Garfield was nominated in 1880; but although Grant had lived as a retired ex-president for four years, the people did not want to break away from the time honored custom of limiting every president to a second term at most. The agitation in favor of re-nominating Grant ran so high that an anti-third term convention met in St. Louis, May 6, 1880, and adopted resolutions protesting against the proposed third term.

In 1875, when the agitation was begun, the house of representatives at Washington adopted resolutions declaring that any departure from the precedent established by Washington and other presidents of the United States would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions. The resolution was carried almost unanimously. Many of the states adopted a similar resolution in their platforms so that the sentiment against the third term was quite general throughout the country. All that action referred not to a third consecutive term but to a third term after the former president had been four years in private life. Roosevelt occupies a position precisely similar today and his plea that it is a non-consecutive term he seeks is ludicrous. He knows that he is running for a nomination in violation of one of the most cherished customs of this republic. He knows the country has set its face against the third term in the past; but he is, or was, vain enough to believe that he could sway the people at will; that he would be nominated in spite of the traditions of the past and in spite of all opposition.

But Col. Roosevelt will get the shock of his life if he lets his name go before the convention. Democrats are not desirous to aid the republican party by advice; and the leaders would doubtless enjoy the spectacle of the foremost citizen, the man who was honored by European courts as the greatest American, finally subjected to the bone-crushing process of being transformed to a political pincushion, so to speak, under the great and ponderous road roller of the republican national convention.

The only way in which Roosevelt can avoid such a fate is to reconsider his decision, withdraw his name and return to the quiet sanctum of the Outlook, there to uphold "his policies" with a new and clearer conception of his proper place in public esteem.

THE DICTOGRAPH AS AN EAVESDROPPER

In all secret deliberations of an illegal nature hereafter the participants will take good care that the eavesdropping dictagraph is not within hearing. The manner in which this instrument was used to get evidence against the alleged dynamiters at Indianapolis and Los Angeles was very remarkable. That a dictagraph should be concealed in the desk of President Ryan for months without detection shows the possibilities of the machine in securing evidence. The conversations carried on in Ryan's office were conveyed by wire to rooms below and taken down verbatim by two stenographers so that each might corroborate the other. Hereafter the criminals who plot crime within four walls will speak in whispers too low for the walls that have ears to hear.

That John H. O'Neill, a Lowell boy, is meeting with great success at the American Museum of Natural History in New York city.

That the boxing game is coming back strong in this vicinity.

SEEN AND HEARD

Henry M. Southworth, the supervising architect of the new Y. M. C. A. building, received an involuntary bath at the new building a few days ago. Mr. Southworth was walking about the edge of the swimming pool in which there was about four feet of water. He had just remarked to one of the workmen that the day was very cold and that it gave him a cold, when he slipped and fell into the pool. It was then that he realized that he was in the water. He was out in a few minutes, but he says he doesn't like to have the bath thrust upon him unawares.

THE LOWELL OPERA HOUSE
Telling a story through which runs a virile religious sentiment that is heart-touching and yet is not of the nature to bring offense. "The Rosary," the play of Edward F. Ross which proved such a big success last season, is repeating this year with added brilliancy. While the central figure is that of a Catholic priest, the character is so drawn that the question of sectarianism is not in any way involved. Rev. Brian Kelly is presented as a man of God whose greatest thought is the good he can do for his fellowman of whatever creed or no creed at all. Harrington Reynolds, who fills the character, seems to have caught the author's inspiration in his conception of the role as the audiences at the Opera House will see when the play is presented tomorrow for three days. He shows a keen Irish sense of humor and good will as a foil to his priestly calling and thus is able to solve the problem of a dramatic tragedy and restore happiness to a home that is near destruction through the machinations of a designing villain who seeks revenge because another has won the woman he loves. He wantonly brings the loving wife into disrepute, after ruining her sister, but also plots the ruin of the fortunes of his successful rival, who believes him a step-father friend. It is the office of the priest to unravel the tangle and restore tranquility, perfecting a moral that should be witnessed by everybody, as well as enjoyed.

THOMAS E. SHEA
Commencing Monday, March 11th, the popular actor, Thomas Shea, will play a four days' engagement at the Opera house, with matinees on Tuesday and Thursday. As the bill for the opening night Mr. Shea will present a new play. It bears the title of "A Man and His Wife," and was written by Samuel Shipman, who dramatized it from the novel "The Spell." Very clearly in the presentation of its four acts it wins the favor of its audience and maintains interest throughout. It tells the story of a man born in the wilds of Maine who rises in the world until he becomes a banker in New York. A society girl much younger than himself has married him for his wealth. Benjamin Clark, the husband and banker, has a high sense of a wife's honor and the sanctity of the home. When he finds Reed, the trust magnate, making love to Mrs. Clark, he dismisses him from his home. In revenge Reed causes a run on the bank, which threatens to ruin Clark; in this situation, the latter escapes his wife, of still loving Reed and proposes to free her by means of divorce. In order that she may marry. From this point she begins to see the true character of both men and in due time all ends happily. "A Man and His Wife" is a good strong play that is attractive for its impressive plot, its excellent literary treatment, its powerful scenes and artistic performance. In Clark, the actor, Mr. Shea has a role that gives him numerous opportunities for effective work and accepts them with remarkable fidelity to life.

"BABY MINE"
The greatest comedy success of a decade, "Baby Mine," right out of Boston with its eight weeks' engagement at the Majestic theatre and which ran for one sold-out day at the New York, and is now in its second year in London, at the Criterion theatre is booked for presentation here on Tuesday, March 19th under the direction of William A. Brady, Ltd. "Baby Mine" is the work of Margaret Mayo and is a new witness to woman's play-craft and wit. It is a story of woman's sense of humor. The idea of "Baby Mine" is simple but its working out is highly ingenious and diverting. Its appeal is universal and irresistible. It will soon be seen in Paris, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg, and negotiations are under way for its production in South America, South Africa, Australia and Japan.

After trying every cure for my skin, I have heard of, and receiving little benefit, I was discouraged and almost gave up, when a friend advised me to try Ever-Heal. I received instant relief from the first application. It seemed like a god-sent to me, as it cured my itching, inflamed skin, also cracked hands. You can use my name and refer all skin sufferers to me." Ever-Heal is a genuine, healing and soothing for eczema and every skin trouble. The Chicago-Philadelphia opera company came to sing in orchestral concerts and recitals at her own. Already she has made arrangements to reappear in Boston.

Good report comes from Berlin of the fortunes of Willy Hess's chamber orchestra. His trio—Georg Schumann, the composer and pianist, Deebour, the violinist, and Hess himself, as violinist—has already found a larger public there than the Hess quartets ever gained in Boston.

At a meeting of the Harvard corporation held in absence on full pay for next year was granted to Professor C. S. Minot, Ph.D., '08, who is to be exchanged professor next year at the University of Berlin. Professor Minot was made a lecturer on embryology in 1880, an instructor in 1883, an assistant professor in 1887, and received full professorship in 1905. In 1905 he was appointed James Stillman professor of comparative anatomy and in this position he still holds. Professor Minot has received honorary degrees as follows: LL.D., Yale, 1893; Toronto, 1904; St. Andrews, 1911; S. D. (honoris causa), Oxford, 1912.

Blair Jackson, author of "Whitman's and William Blake's," is to be published by the Lowell Sun. He has been made a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society. Mr. Jackson expects to start for Mexico in a few weeks to gather material for a series of magazine articles.

Much interest is shown in London over the reported decision by experts that a picture recently bought by Mr. Boukling of that city is Rembrandt's "The Millers," which dropped out of sight many years ago. The date assigned is 1630, when the artist was about 26 years old. The picture is 39 by 48 inches and in spite of restorations is said to be in good condition, with excellent coloring.

STRUCK WITH BAT

Man Fined For Assault on a Neighbor

The case of Vasilios Demopoulos charged with assault and battery on Demetrios Apostolou took up the greater portion of this morning's session of the police court. After a series of sworn witnesses had been heard, the court found the defendant guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $8. Mr. George F. Toy appeared for the defendant and the government's case was cured for by Lawyer A. O. Hume.

From the testimony brought out, the assault took place last Sunday afternoon about one o'clock in a house in Suffolk street. The defendant resides on the lower floor and the complainant lives on the second floor. There was an ash barrel on the lower piazza and when the complainant started to remove it, claiming that it was his property, he was assaulted by the defendant, the latter using a baseball bat.

It was apparent that the assault was the result of previous trouble between the men and for that reason the court after finding the defendant guilty imposed a fine of $8.

Drunk Offenders
Dennis Mahoney was arraigned before Judge Pickman this morning on a complaint charging him with being drunk. He entered a plea of guilty, but inasmuch as he promised to do better in the future the court placed him on probation for six months.

Thomas E. Coughlin was fined $8 and there was one first offender who was fined $2.

Fine of $5 Imposed
Michael Finnegan, who was yesterday found guilty of the larceny of $5 cents' worth of chewing gum from a woman who conducted a stall at the corner of Hale and Howard streets, was this morning ordered to pay a fine of $5.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

Any one of the eight big acts at Keith's this week is good for there is not a weak spot throughout the bill, and several of them would make good headliners. "The Country Kids," Gas Edwards' great condensed musical comedy which includes nine lively comedians and singers headed by Fred Hackett and charming little Gertrude Morgan is an entire show in itself. Little Miss Morgan possesses a peculiar charm which brings the entire audience to her feet particularly the male portion. The act includes 10 musical numbers, all Gas Edwards' own, dancing, a minstrel first part, the barn dance and the Bingville band. No more enjoyable act than that of Keith's, who gives a whole country school entertainment by himself ever came to Lowell. It's a huge laugh. "The Haulers" do the fastest and most daring acrobatic and hand-balancing act ever seen here. The hand work of other performers is as child's play to them. They work nine minutes without a single stall and accomplish a bewildering number of amazing stunts. Whittemore's broches direct from a Montana ranch are finely educated and handsome specimens of the equine species. Fred Jarvis and Ivy Leighton in "The Yellow and Girl on the Bench" have a delightful comedy act that includes singing, dancing, and a most pleasing manner. Miller and Zellman have a cute little comedy drama entitled "The Woman Who Dared." Claudia and Scarlet have one of the most popular musical acts on the bill. On their hands they play the old, old songs of the past and the words are thrown in and sung with great gusto and peace of mind. It's one great bill.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The three-act comedy, "Oh! Uncle John," one of Sidney Grundy's best plays, being given this week at the Merrimack Square theatre by the members of the Stock company, is meeting with general success on each performance. The piece is one of the well-known playwrights' brightest and most humorous productions, a fact that should assure all of its superior qualities. It's brimful of laughable situations and funny sayings that combine in making an hour and one-half of real enjoyment. The piece, under whose personal direction, a piece is given, appears in one of the leading parts, a comedy character in which this popular entertainer finds himself very cleverly cast. As Felix Featherstone, the husband who plans to make a trick out of his wife, but who finds the tables turned and himself suffers considerable humiliation as a result, Mr. Weston is especially funny. As Penelope, the maid, Mrs. Constance Jackson, is also pleasing. Charles Stevens as Uncle John and Miss Jessie Graham, as Mrs. Featherstone, are well adequate. West LaFay, a Lowell boy, is also found in part that gives him opportunity to display his worth. The staging of the piece is excellently done.

The Tremont quartet, singers and entertainers of rare merit, share in the commendation which the entire bill deserves, and Miss Anne McMahon, soloist and Fred's Educated Dogs, are also features that are greatly appreciated. The photo-plays and view of world-wide events, provided exclusively by the Merrimack Square theatre, are added attractions for the week. On Friday night selections from the opera "Deron Trenck," will be featured by the Merrimack Square Theatre Concert orchestra.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
Today is the day that amateurs reign supreme at the Academy of Music. Amateurs in the afternoon and amateurs in the evening.

The popular show is the best in Lowell for the money and every one who is a lover of the opera and the "Trooper" present "Don in a Bachelor Shop." It's great. W. Crawford has them all guesser. The Halfpenny Stock company in "The Midnight Visitor" presents a refined dramatic playlet that can't be beat. Next week is a new show. Our photo-plays have never been seen in Lowell before.

Millady's Toilet Table

By Miss D'ALLIE

There are simple home treatments that will keep the hair and complexion young looking. Dry shampooing cleans the scalp and hair, and makes the hair grow. Just put a cupful of cornmeal in a fruit jar and mix with it an ounce of perfume. Sprinkle a little on the head and brush out. It brushes out easily and leaves the hair clean, bright, wavy and rich. It is a simple, safe, and effective treatment. To keep the face youthful and fair, make a simple lotion by dissolving an original package of mayonnaise in a half pint of witch hazel and rub over the face with water to cover it on a cotton pad. Your complexion will soon be smooth, clear, grain-like and free from blemishes. Wet hairs or fuzzy growths can be made to vanish quickly by applying delicate paste. Mix enough powdered starch with water to cover the hair, apply and apply after two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin, and the hairs will be gone. Change cold sores, pimples, eczema and other skin eruptions disappear. Rub Mother's Salve into the affected surfaces before retiring. It quickly heals chaps, cuts, burns, scalds, etc. It is antiseptic as well as healing and lessens danger of blood poisoning.

TY COBB THE BEST

John J. Evers Pays High Tribute to Detroit Wonder

The following interesting article on Ty Cobb which appears in the March issue of the Baseball magazine and written by John J. Evers of the Chicago Cubs shows what the star second sacker of the National league thinks of the Detroit wonder:

Loyalty to his own club and his own league should be a leading characteristic of every ball player, and I think I have always been loyal mine. I would like to be able to say that a National league player, particularly a Chicago club player, was the greatest in the game. I have said, and I still say, that Manager Frank Chance is one of the most phenomenal players America has ever known. In fact, I would go still further, and say that he has never had but one superior. But that one superior I am forced to admit in fairness is not a Chicago National player, nor in fact a National league player at all. His name is Ty Cobb, and his wonderful record on the Detroit American team ever since he broke into the game has been the sensation of the baseball world.

I am not alone in this high opinion of Ty Cobb's work. This view of mine, I believe, is shared by practically every other member of the National league. There are good players there—many of them—some of extraordinary ability. It is natural they should have their friends and backers, and they do have them. But Cobb's career has been so extraordinary, so much above everything that was or could reasonably be expected, that his merits have aroused the attention of his fellow players, and now demand that recognition which they so richly deserve.

The day of the .400 hitter was supposed to have disappeared a decade ago. The introduction of the foul strike was destined as the death blow of this remarkable average. The tremendous slump in batting during the years that followed as compared with those which preceded was evidence of this new factor in baseball. But Cobb ever since he started the baseball world by his meteoric rise in prominence, has steadily advanced toward that seemingly impossible goal of the .400, until during the season that has just passed, he finally attained his ambition, and reached the grand batting average of .420.

The new york center ball has been held responsible for much of the good batting in the American league, but it should have had the same influence on batting in the National league, for the ball, used by both organizations was practically the same. I cannot say the new ball was not heavier, or that it did not favor the batter, because competent judges everywhere admit that it did, and it was in fact designed for that purpose.

However, it did not account for Cobb's remarkable average, nor do I believe it added him materially in gaining that average. Cobb has always been a star at the batting game. He has beat out many a bunt every season by sheer speed, and in fact depends upon his skill in this direction for much of his effectiveness as a batsman. The new ball prevented him from shining in this department of the game, so that he bunted safely only two or three times during the entire season. He was compelled to resort to straight batting and depend on nothing but driving the ball beyond the reach of the fielders. The hits, which made up that remarkable average of .420, were safe hits, in every sense of the word, so it will readily appear that the new ball, while it favored Cobb in some ways, handicapped him in others, and was far from being so conspicuous a factor in his wonderful record as has been commonly believed.

Cobb's marvelous showing as a batter is alone enough to insure his reputation for all time. Add to this, however, his uncanny ability as a base runner—an ability in which he stands unequalled, and they place him a little above and beyond the rank of any other player in the game today.

Cobb is still a young man. He has but reached the age when the average big league player is beginning to get a reputation. In the nature of things he should have several years of his best work still before him. What he will do in the future no one knows, but he should certainly not go back for several years to come. It seems hardly possible that he can better his last year's record, but for that matter it seemed hardly possible that he could better the record of the year before. Cobb's career has been a constant succession of shattered records and seemingly impossible achievements.

COASTING ACCIDENT

TWO GIRLS MET WITH SERIOUS INJURIES

Ella Dinkley of Dinkley street and Lydia L'Ezuyer of Humboldt avenue, Davenport, suffered a bad accident Sunday while coasting in Humboldt avenue. The children who are about 13 years of age each, were coasting on the same sled when in some manner it diverted from its course and before it could be stopped it dashed into a large rock on the side of the road, throwing its occupants with great force on the ice. The little ones were carried to their respective homes and Dr. M. A. Tighe, who was called, found that the Dinkley girl was suffering from two broken ribs, while the other little girl had received internal injuries. Their condition however, is not serious.

SALE SET ASIDE

CHICAGO NATIONALS MUST TAKE BACK WALSH

CINCINNATI, O., March 6.—The National Baseball commission yesterday promulgated a finding in accordance with which Anthony Walsh must be taken back by the Chicago National League club from the Terre Haute club which recently bought him from the Newark club of the International league.

The finding requires that the Chicago club within 10 days shall dispose of the player's services to a Major League club or a Class A club, if it decides not to retain him, and that if this is found impossible, the Fall River club of the New England league be given the privilege of buying the player.

The commission holds that in the transferring of Walsh to Newark by Chicago, and subsequently from Newark to Terre Haute, which is in the same classification as Fall River, within a year's time, the rules of organized baseball had been violated.

A FINE PROGRAM

For Members of Lowell S. and A. Club

At the weekly meeting of the Lowell Social and Athletic club which will be held at Mathew hall on Friday evening one of the best programs of the season will be given. The list of attractions includes four all star bouts. The first will be furnished by Johnnie Gleason and Jimmie Heardon, both of this city and as these boys are great rivals a lively number is promised.

This match will be of six rounds. The remaining numbers will be ten round engagements. In the first ten round the principals will be Young Walsh, bantamweight champion of Lowell and Spider Murphy, a very clever performer from South Boston. These two had at it last week and resulted in a draw. Both boys showed to good advantage and their exhibition was one of the best that ever happened at the club. As both are putting in considerable training for the meeting a good match is predicted. The next ten round bout will be provided by Johnnie Muntie of Charlestown and Kid Alvarado from East Boston, two crack-jacks who have given such very clever exhibits in the location of the state. Both are well trained for the match and each is confident of winning the verdict. The final between Tommie Flanagan of Cambridge and Kid Lee of Chelsea is expected to be very class. These men are well matched and both are engaging in hard training for the match. The meeting will start at 8:15 o'clock and Billy Gardner will officiate as referee.

FAMINE FUND DAY, MARCH 10, TO RAISE MONEY FOR FLOOD SUFFERERS

NEW YORK, March 6.—The China famine relief committee, which is co-operating with the Red Cross, is raising money for the relief of famine sufferers in China. Bishop David H. Greer is chairman of the committee and Jacob H. Schiff is the treasurer, while Nicholas Murray Butler, Seth Low, Joseph H. Choate and a score of men equally well known are members. The committee has selected March 10 as famine fund day, and efforts will be made to collect money on that day in churches all over the country. In its appeal the committee says: "Six millions of people in central China are on the verge of starvation. Last summer the worst floods in forty years destroyed the crops in an area of 50,000 square miles. Many have already died of hunger, and unless prompt relief is given multitudes of men, women and children must perish. During the last few weeks the political and military news from China has absorbed the attention and interest of the world to the exclusion of the needs of the hungry millions. No harvest can be expected until May. Until then the famine will be growing daily more acute. The people to be relieved are chiefly hardworking and honest farmers. As president of the American Red Cross, President Taft has issued a proclamation asking the people of the United States to help the people of China. He has joined with other officers of the Red Cross in requesting this citizens' committee to make known the facts. The Chinese government and people are doing what they can to

SUBMARINES TWO OF THE SAILORS AND THE MASCOTS

NEW YORK, March 6.—Two new submarines, the K-1 and the K-2, are on their way from the Brooklyn navy yard to Norfolk, Va. That their commanders had no idea of submerging them during the trip south was shown by both being canvas covered to the water line. On board the two submarines are two cat mascots. Before many months both these mascots will be deep sea cats, for when they make dives the mascots will remain on board. Naval men are interested in the voyage of these two deep sea fighters, for they are the first to be equipped with temporary masts, which will fold up and drop to the deck when a dive is made.

FOUR WHITE HOPES WHO ARE NOW IN THE PUGILISTIC LIMELIGHT

WELLS STEWART MORRIS PALZER

NEW YORK, March 6.—That the white hopes are not all disappointments and that Jack Johnson will soon begin to take the new crop of heavyweights seriously is now the belief of the pugilistic experts in this city. Fight promoters here have been talking over themselves in offering purses of $10,000 and $11,000 for a ten round battle between Carl Morris and Al Palzer. This is a big sum of money for two heavyweights who are not rated as topnotchers, but no doubt the battle will be a good one, and the promoters should make money out of the mill.

The two men are considered the best white heavyweights before the public today, and one or the other may be Jack Johnson's next opponent. Both men are giants. Morris is six feet four in his stocking feet and weighs 330 pounds. Although boxing but a trifle over a year, he has fought his way against odds into recognition. He is gaining in experience and from a joke has become a factor. Palzer is six feet one and three eighths at 210 pounds. He has tremendous power behind his punches and plenty of speed and aggressiveness. He is being handled carefully and may be the next champion. His manager says he will not be ready for Johnson until a year or so from now. Two other pugilists in the limelight are Bombardier Wells, the English champion, who is due to arrive here shortly to meet Palzer on the coast, and Jim Stewart of Brooklyn. The latter until he was badly hurt in one fight was considered the most promising white hope in the country. He retired for a year, but is now after all of 'em. His recent bout with Morris, with whom he is credited as having a draw, entitles him to recognition as a possibility. Stewart is clever, has a punch and weighs 202 pounds in trim. Wells is clever and has a good wallop, but it is believed he cannot assimilate any great amount of punishment. At present Johnson could defeat all four of the heavies mentioned, but in a year or so things may be different. The champion is 34 years of age and hasn't had a fight for nearly two years. He is matched to meet Flynn, but the battle is considered too one sided and may be called off.

HE DID NOT KNOW LAW

Commissioner Lynch Unable to Give Authority for Arrests

WASHINGTON, March 6.—C. F. Lynch, commissioner of public safety of Lawrence, who has charge of the police of that city, started the committee on rules yesterday by admitting on the witness stand that he did not know by what authority of law women and children were taken into custody at the time of the stationing of Feb. 24, when the police prevented by force the exportation of children. Under questioning by Rep. Stanley, Lynch said none of the parents of the children had appeared to him against their being taken away, but he understood from one of his police captains that all of them did not have permission to leave.

"Did you see in the fall, after the struggle at the depot, women and children and women with babies in arms?" asked Representative Stanley.

"Yes, I saw them there, but they were not in jail," Lynch replied.

"How were they restrained. Weren't they free to go if they wanted to?"

"They were brought there to be held until their cases had been disposed of," Lynch said.

"They were brought there by the police then, and did you ask any of these mothers whether they were incarcerated because they had tried to keep their children from being kidnapped or because they tried to send them away?"

"No, I did not," replied Lynch.

"By what warrant were these mothers and children there?"

"I didn't know what the law was on the subject," Lynch replied.

"Well, then, just why were they arrested?" persisted Mr. Stanley.

"I don't think they were, and I didn't know at the station whether they were mothers or not," replied Lynch.

THE MOTH BILL VETO

Was Sustained in House by Vote of 120 to 83

BOSTON, March 5.—In the Massachusetts house yesterday P. B. Carr of Boston moved to substitute for an adverse report a bill calling for the removal of the elevated structure between the North station and Sullivan square, Boston, and for the substitution thereof of a subway.

C. L. Carr of Boston opposed substitution. While recognizing that the structure has injured Charlestown, he said the problem presented is whether the people of Boston want to throw away the three and a half millions invested in the present structure.

Substitution prevailed on a rising vote, 59 to 38, with the understanding that it will be referred to the next general court, and this disposition was then made of it, on P. B. Carr's motion.

Mr. Harrington of Fall River moved to substitute for an adverse report a bill providing that the police and license commission in Fall River, at present appointed by the governor, shall hereafter be elected by the people.

He said the matter was submitted to the voters of the city last fall, and by a majority of 500 they favored an effective commission, and he believed the fundamental principle of home rule should be applied.

Substitution was favored by Parks of Fall River and opposed by Mulvey and LeBlond of that city and by Miles of Malden. Substitution was defeated on a rising vote, 50 to 66.

Moth Veto Sustained

Gov. Frost veto of the bill appropriating $450,000 to be expended in three years for suppressing grape and locust-bark moths was next taken up. Mr. Washburn of Worcester contended that the governor was inconsistent in approving a bill appropriating $5,000,000 to be expended in five years for highway work and then vetoing this bill.

Mr. Hemen of Cambridge held that there is no real comparison between constructive highway work and destructive locust-bark moth work. On a rollcall the veto was sustained by a vote of 120 to 83, a two-thirds vote being necessary to pass the bill over the veto.

Gov. Frost's special message transmitting his approval of the requests of the state board of charity for appropriations was referred to the committee on ways and means and public charitable institutions.

Mr. Mulvey of Fall River moved to substitute for an adverse report a bill providing that in civil actions where the plaintiff may increase the damages, Mr. Scaborn of Lawrence opposed the bill.

CHINAMAN AND GIRL

Were Placed Under Arrest at Newburyport Yesterday

NEWBURYPORT, March 6.—A Chinaman giving the name of Henry Ching Lee of Portsmouth, N. H., and a white girl, who said she was Josie McDonald, were taken to the police station here yesterday afternoon and held for the Portsmouth police.

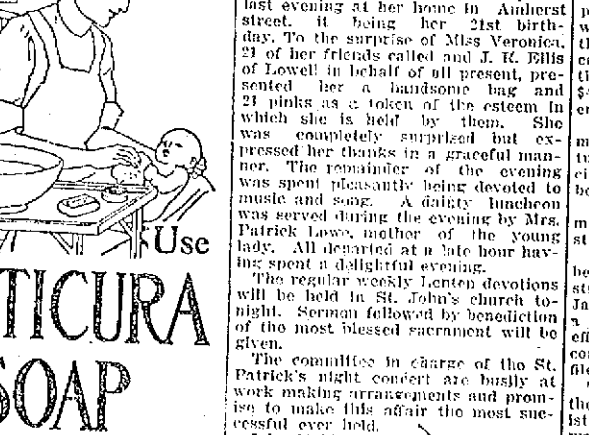

Shortly after noon Patrolman James Murphy saw the girl walking along Pleasant street, with the Chinaman trailing along a few feet behind. As the man came up to him he asked the policeman where he could find a minister, saying that he wanted to get married. Accessing the girl, Murphy asked if this was so, and she said that it was. She said that the Chinaman was the keeper of a restaurant in Portsmouth, and that she had been working there.

Threats she said he had prevailed on her to come over here and get married to him. She said that they had been here a week and that their intentions at city hall and came over to have the ceremony performed, but did not know where to find a minister. She said that she did not want to marry him but supposed she would have to as he had threatened to have her arrested.

Inquiry of the Portsmouth police not only showed that the man conducted a restaurant there as stated, but also that the girl was already married, having become the bride of Charles J. Meyers, a sailor on the battleship Montana, a month ago.

Confronted with this statement the girl confessed that she had given her wrong name to the city clerk and that she was married. Her maiden name was Walsh, she said, and she has been a resident of Portsmouth only about a year, coming there from New Brunswick. The Chinaman said that he did not know she was married. Both were held for the Portsmouth officers.

JOHN C. BURKE DEAD

Well Known Lawyer Passed Away at His Home Last Night

It will be with sorrow that the friends of John C. Burke will hear of his death which occurred last night at his home, 23 Elmwood street, after a lingering illness of several months. Deceased was taken ill some time ago and was removed to a New York hospital, where everything was done to

THE LATE JOHN C. BURKE

He passed away last night at 11:30 o'clock.

He was born in Leeds, Eng., August 5, 1854, coming to this country when very young and spending his early life in Vermont. Twenty-two years ago he came to Lowell and became one of the firm of Marshall, Hamblett & Burke, now known as Burke and Corbett. He is survived by a son, George W., and a daughter, Julia Lillian.

John C. Burke is descended from a sturdy ancestry. His father, Walter Burke, was born in 1824. His mother, Kate Riley, was born in 1824. At the age of eight months his parents emigrated to this country, locating at New York, where his father was employed in one of the large commercial houses as a bookkeeper. The family remained in New York until the breaking out of the Civil war, when they removed to Albany, N. Y.

Mr. Burke attended the public schools of Albany until he was 13 years of age, when he entered the employ of the Portland & Ogdensburg railroad. He rose rapidly in the ranks and became superintendent, but resigned to broaden his education, and entered Gratiot academy. Feeling the call for the law, he entered the law office of W. W. Mills at Craftsbury and was admitted to practice in 1878. He practiced in Newport as well as Albany, Vt., before removing to Lowell, where he entered into partnership with Hon. J. N. Marshall and J. L. Hamblett. The firm later became Burke, Marshall & Corbett, and still later took the name which it now bears, Burke & Corbett.

Mr. Burke was married to Miss Gertrude Dow of Albany, Vt., Dec. 23, 1881. He was a democrat in politics, and during President Cleveland's campaign, he made a great reputation as a ready and effective speaker.

The Trades National bank will close Thursday afternoon, March 7th, at 1 o'clock, out of respect to its president, John C. Burke, whose funeral services occur during the afternoon.

PLUMBERS COMPLAIN

Say That Unlicensed Men Are Doing Work

The board of health at its regular meeting held yesterday afternoon voted over the plans for a sanitary in Paige street.

The plans were prepared by City Engineer Stephen Kearney and the board voted to refer them to the city council with the recommendation that they be adopted.

Joseph Flynn appeared before the board to tell why he kept meat and fish in front of his store exposed to the air. He said it was his purpose to discontinue the practice though he believed he had a right to do it if he wanted to. The board felt that Mr. Flynn desired to make a test case of it and voted to take the matter into court, provided the evidence obtained would warrant such action.

Mr. Leavanger, representing the plumbers market, said the practice of displaying fish and meat in the open had been abandoned at the Saunders market.

The city engineer's report on the proposed sanitary in Paige street was received.

Mr. Kearney said it would be possible to use only one side of the street because of the depth of the sewer and the only change in the street would be a four-inch gas pipe and in the conduits of the Lowell Electric Light corporation. The cost of excavation would be extremely high, because of the ledge in that locality. The entire cost was estimated to be $15,000, and the cost of maintenance, annually, $1000. Three men and three women would have to be employed.

Accompanying Mr. Kearney's statement were plans and it was voted to turn the same over to the city council with the recommendation that they be adopted.

Alfred Hendrick petitioned for permission to build a stable in Carnine street, and favorable action was taken.

Martin Flaherty made a complaint because of an alleged nuisance constituted by a stable of the heirs of James Walsh in Highland avenue, and a report by Inspector Connors to the effect that the stable was in good condition was received and placed on file.

The opinion of the city solicitor to the effect that the mayor is the administrative head of the board of health was adopted as a part of the board's records.

Plumber's Union Complains

There was a delegation present from the Lowell Plumbers' union to discuss certain allegations relative to non-compliance with the board's rules regulating plumbing.

Secretary Shepard said he wrote the letter asking for a hearing because of representations made that a certain firm had installed plumbing in a building by use of unlicensed plumbers. James H. Corcoran said he saw the work going on in the Glidden building and the man engaged was not a licensed plumber. It was only a small job.

Mr. Joseph Meaney of the Shaw Plumbing company, himself licensed, said he took a helper to the Glidden building and after performing some work, he instructed the helper to work on the "trap" and it was when this was going on, Mr. Corcoran happened along. One trap was set in place, a second was not. Mr. Meaney finished the job.

Mr. Shaw spoke of the difference of opinion relative to the work a helper may do under the supervision of a journeyman plumber, and he expressed the opinion that a helper may properly be employed in this manner.

Mr. Shepard said Local 12 of Boston had successfully prosecuted a case in which a helper had been employed as in this case, though the action has been taken to a higher court.

TWO MEN ARRESTED

Big Plot to Sell Jewels Unearthed

CHICAGO, March 6.—A jewelry conspiracy, which has cost the Plain National Watch company more than $50,000 during the last year, came to light yesterday with the arrest of two of the company's employees in the Grand Pacific hotel.

The men arrested, who are alleged to have been the ringleaders, are Francis Vallety and John Caffery, local actors for the watch company. The arrest was made by private detectives, after it was learned that the men were seeking to sell 17,000 watch jewels to John Worley, a Waltham, Mass., jeweler.

Worley is said to have refused to buy the goods unless a bill of sale could be furnished. He was followed from Waltham by an operative of the detective agency, who took a room next to that occupied by him. No sooner had the 17,000 jewels been produced and the haggling over the price begun than the trade was interrupted.

Worley, who is said to have been in no way connected with the alleged swindle, was allowed to return to his home in Waltham. According to the officials of the watch company, the jewels are worth $1 apiece. The alleged price sought by Vallety and Caffery was only 3 cents for each jewel.

Charles G. Somers, the well known constable and Polish interpreter at police court was found dead in the hallway of his home, 32 Gorham street, early this morning, and although the police are of the opinion that death was due to an accident, his wife and several of his friends believe he met with foul play.

The body was found shortly after five o'clock this morning at the foot of the stairs near the entrance door and it was removed to the funeral parlors of Undertaker J. H. McDermott, where after an examination it was found there was a large bruise over the left eye, a blue mark on the bridge of the nose and a cut on the left side of the head.

According to Mrs. Somers, Charles left his home shortly after 7 o'clock last night and that was the last she saw of him until this morning when she found his body at the foot of the stairs in the front hallway. She said

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Murder and Suicide at Georgetown, Texas

GEORGETOWN, Texas, March 6.—John T. Sneed was killed here today by one of his tenants, R. O. Hilliard. The assassin killed himself. It was said he shot for revenge. John T. Sneed was father of John Bral Sneed. The latter recently was on trial for the killing of Captain A. G. Boyce. The first tragedy was the sequel to the elopement of Captain Boyce's son with Sneed's wife. It is presumed today that the killing was a direct outgrowth of the Boyce-Sneed feud. The Sneed trial was not decisive, the jury failing to agree.

HORSES RAN AWAY

WHILE BEING EXERCISED BY SAM PAGE

While Sam Page of the Pawtucketville fire house, Engine 5, was exercising his horses yesterday forenoon, the equines, three in all, took it into their heads to run away and off they went. When it comes to handling horses Sam Page is somewhat of a teamster. He has been holding the reins over the fire department horses since the bubble-cracking days of the red shirted log drivers, but he would have required the strength of a Sampson and the persuasive eloquence of a political spell binder to have done anything with those horses, yesterday. They hadn't been to a fire for some time and they were feeling altogether too coltish for Samuel's peace of mind.

What did they do? Well they humped into a grocery wagon belonging to John J. Sullivan and what they didn't do to that wagon was little. The horse attached to the wagon had to come in for his share of the rumpus and the extent of the damage will be known when Mr. Sullivan sends his bill to the city. After going through a series of stunts that would make a trio of circus equines look like farm horses the "pullers" went back to the fire house wearing a look of innocence and appeared somewhat penitent when Sam told of their outrageous conduct.

A Reasonable
Precaution

There are many little things it is wise to do. One of them is to carry a box of dyspeptics with you wherever you go. The chances are that you will not need such a remedy. To be without it, when the stomach has become sour, or something has been eaten that the stomach for some reason or other cannot digest without help, is to be in an uncomfortable situation, to say the least, and it may become serious. Dyspeptics are put up in three sizes. The 10c size is a handsome aluminum bonbonniere which is very conveniently carried in the pocket. Many persons buy this size and refill it from the 50c or $1 size, which they buy eventually. If not at the same time, for to use these digestive tablets once is to adopt them as a remedy for all common stomach troubles.

Dyspeptics are prepared only by C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all druggists.

CLUBBING STORY

Is Denied by Captain Sullivan of the Lawrence Police Dept.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Mrs. Taft, wife of the president of the United States, seated behind Rep. Henry of Texas, chairman of the rules committee, and beside Victor Berger, the socialist member of congress, listened attentively for three hours today to testimony relating to the strike of mill workers at Lawrence, Mass. This was the second day on which Mrs. Taft had appeared at the hearing. Attired in a dark blue street dress and dark plumed hat, Mrs. Taft entered the crowded room accompanied by her niece, Miss Anderson. Treading the long platform occupied by the committee, Mrs. Taft accepted a chair directly behind Rep. Berger, who is pleading the cause of the strikers. Seated on the other side was Lewis S. Cox, the postmaster of Lawrence, who is at the head of the citizens committee.

Mrs. Taft several times conversed with Mr. Berger.
As the testimony proceeded she appeared very much interested and denied the cigar and cigarette smoke that filled the room.

On adjournment Mrs. Taft was asked by Chairman Henry if she cared to return in the afternoon.
"We will find better seats for you if you care to come back, Mrs. Taft," said Mr. Henry.

"Thank you," Mrs. Taft replied, "but I do not know whether we will return or not."

It was learned that another visitor at the hearing yesterday was Miss Anne Morgan of New York, daughter of J. P. Morgan. She stood in the crowd surrounding the witness room for some time and left unobserved.

TODAY'S HEARING

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Mrs. Taft, wife of President Taft, today attended the hearing before the rules committee of the House into the strike conditions at Lawrence, Mass. Mrs. Taft journeyed to Capitol hill through a heavy snowstorm and reached the committee room soon after 10 o'clock. She occupied a seat behind the committee on the platform. Wives of many congressmen also were present. C. F. Lynch, commissioner of public safety of Lawrence, resumed the stand. He first told of leading personal financial assistance to some parents who were persuaded not to send their children from Lawrence.

"Did the city authorities and citizens make any effort to settle the strike?" asked Rep. Hardwick.

"Yes, sir," the city government commissioners met with the strike committee and tried to arrange a meeting with the mill owners. The mill owners refused to deal with the organization but would with their own men."

The commissioner said that he personally saw one riot about the mills.

"I saw a crowd hurling rocks at the mills," he stated.

"What section of the statute authorized you to order the police to prevent children leaving Lawrence?" asked Rep. Stanley.

"It was looked up at the time—the statute, I think, was that preventing children's departure without parental consent."

"Did you instruct the police to get written consent of their parents?"

"Yes,"

"What if the parent was present at the depot?"

"Well, that would be different if we knew they were the parents."

"Did you read that law you say you have on the statute books of Massachusetts, upon which you acted in this matter?"

"I did not."

"Did you order the police to jail the children?"

"I left that to the man who had police experience."

Captain Sullivan
Captain J. J. Sullivan, city marshal of Lawrence, was called as the next witness and told details of the police operations during the strike.

Captain Sullivan described several street riots and declared that his men were instructed to act carefully. He was asked about the stabbing of an Italian boy.

"Soldiers were going across a trestle bridge," he said, "when this boy rushed at one of them. A second soldier prodded him with a bayonet. No report ever was made to the police of this case."

"What was the boy attempting to do?" asked Rep. Dalzell.

"No one knew what was in the boy's mind but the supposition is he intended to push the soldier through the trestle."

"What happened to the boy?"

"He was taken to a hospital and recovered."

He told of one morning when the strikers had planned to form an endless chain parade, locking arms to prevent persons who wished to go to work from reaching the mills.

"Although they did not do this," he continued, "they did fill several of the streets leading to the mills. I am sure there were 25,000 people in these mobs. No attempt at a parade was made but numerous persons were prevented from going to work."

"Late in the day the strikers began pulling the trolleys off cars all along the line."

"The cars were stoned, police driven out and motorcars and conductors frightened off. I saw one man pick up two chunks of ice and hurl them. I put him under arrest and was pelted with ice. One officer came to my assistance. I held up my club and threatened any man who came near."

An Armenian who struck me in the head a particularly hard blow was the only man I hit. I did strike him as hard as I could. I saw there a carpenter wounded, assaulted by strikers, after they had dragged him from the car."

He described other demonstrations where people paraded the streets singing "La Marseillaise" and other songs in foreign tongues.

"Could you locate the leaders, men or women, who led assaults?" asked Rep. Wilson of Illinois.

"I saw a crowd of strikers in the streets," said the captain. "The crowds were usually led by women and children. They were always in the front ranks and sometimes women had children in their arms. Other women carried flags. On the first morning Editor the strike leader, was about the mills giving orders but when the demonstrations took place he always disappeared."

Describing the stabbing of Officer Benoit and the killing of a woman, Captain Sullivan said:

"I want to say that the man who killed the woman was the man who stabbed Officer Benoit. We know that man and we will get him. It has been testified here that Officer Benoit killed the woman. Officer Benoit carried a 32 calibre revolver and she was killed with a 35 calibre revolver."

"Who was the man you have in mind?"

"I shouldn't tell you that; it would defeat the ends of justice."

"Was he a striker?"

"We think he was and the woman was also a striker. I think that shooting started as pure defiance to raise trouble and that there was no intention to kill anybody. The police did not shoot."

Captain Sullivan also told of another officer who was stabbed during the outbreak. Another method of the strikers to arouse trouble, he said, was the concerted plan of the strikers in flocking through the stores, passing in and out without buying anything.

"They had our storekeepers in a state of terror and for some time business was practically at a stand still though the stores were not closed," he said.

Children, Found Wandering
Captain Sullivan recounted to the committee several incidents in which he said children were sent out of Lawrence by the strikers without the consent or even the knowledge of their parents. In one case two children sent from Lawrence were found wandering on the street in New York.

"In consequence of these complaints," he said, "I notified the strike committee and had it published that no children would be permitted to leave Lawrence without the written consent of their parents."

Captain Sullivan said the strike committee had published a broadcast "that the children were going to go despite Captain Sullivan's order. Just before the time of the trouble at the depot, he said, a system of picketing by women had been inaugurated by the strikers. The women being chiefly Polish, Russian, etc. These pickets would not obey the police."

"They felt that they were martyrs, heroines, and wanted to go to jail," said the captain. "When they were fined for assaults they appealed their cases."

These women were in jail on the day of the trouble at the station and their children were brought to them in the jails. "Those were the children described here as being locked up. Their fathers had brought them there."

and left them. The women and children brought to the station after the trouble at the depot never saw a cell. "They never were put in cells."

Describing the trouble at the depot, Captain Sullivan said he had 24 officers with him and gave orders that all loiterers be driven away.

"The depot was full of people," he said. "I went in and saw the soldiers filled with women and children. I said to them: 'Any of you who are leaving Lawrence or sending children away because you can't have assistance here are under a misapprehension. I want to say to you that you will be taken care of by the authorities.'"

The captain denied that there was any violence used and said that he was on the spot all the time and that no soldiers were there with guns and bayonets.

"Why were those women and children taken to the station?" Rep. Dalzell asked.

"Because of complaints we had received before and because these people absolutely refused any information."

He also denied testimony of Max Bogatin that he was stopped at the door of the depot.

"That is absolutely false and I want to say that I was there to see that no one was hurt and was as careful as I would have been with any women or children. There were no children thrown into that truck. They were lifted there by strong men."

"There were only eight women there and fifteen children. They didn't go into the truck cheerfully. They had to be assisted to the truck but they were not thrown."

JOHN MITCHELL

Declined Today to Make
Promise to Court

WASHINGTON, March 6.—John Mitchell, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, today declined to give to Judge Wright of the district supreme court any assurance that he expected hereafter to lead and heretofore to the decesses of the judicial tribunals of the land.

To do so, he declared, would be an admission that he had heretofore failed to comply with lawful decrees. Mr. Mitchell said he would rather be convicted of contempt than be acquitted on any other ground than the facts in the case.

STRIKE LEADERS

WERE ARRESTED AT MANCHESTER, N. H., TODAY

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 6.—Armed with court warrants, a squad of Manchester police today arrested seven strike leaders among the leaders who built work two weeks ago in the McElwain shoe factories of this city. The strikers, nearly 700 strong, with music, were assembling for the purpose of making their usual noonday parade when the officers approached and arrested George Howie and Fred J. Wolfe, both of whom have been conspicuous in the demonstrations in this city, and with them four Greek strikers. The prisoners are charged with an offense against the picketing law and with interference with the lawful occupation of individuals.

SEVERAL FIGHTS

Between Strike Pickets and the Mill
Operatives in Lawrence

LAWRENCE, March 6.—Fourteen arrests of strikers and strike sympathizers were made just before the opening of the textile mills today. The morning was the liveliest of the week, and although a number of clashes between the pickets and those returning to work occurred no person was seriously injured. The Industrial Workers of the World were able to maintain most of their strength and many former employees of the American Woolen Co.'s mills remain out. It is estimated that about 3000 strikers have joined the operatives at work in the Lawrence mills this week, but many of those who went back were not members of the Industrial Workers. The most serious occurrence this morning was at the gates of the Arlington mills, where an Italian on his way to work was assaulted. The assailant was arrested. Nearly all of the arrests were for minor offenses.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, March 6.—Rebels are in control of the entire state of Chihuahua today. Col. Pacheco Villa and his force are still in the state but so outnumbered as to be ineffective. ATLANTIC FLEET
WILL START FOR HOME IN ABOUT TWO WEEKS

WASHINGTON, March 5.—After three months hard work under a tropical sun off the south coast of Cuba, the Atlantic fleet will head for home in about two weeks and should arrive off the Chesapeake capes on March 24th. Home-coming will not mean rest, however, as the warships will begin at once regular early spring target practice about 10 miles off the mouth of Chesapeake bay. With fair weather this week should be completed in about two weeks and then the ships will scatter to their home yards for docking and repainting, preparatory to summer drills off the New England coast.

The fleet will be augmented soon by the big dreadnoughts Utah and Florida which are now engaged on their final trials.

PASTOR RICHESON

Visited by Gov. Foss and Council.

BOSTON, March 6.—Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson had a brief conference today with Gov. Foss and eight members of the executive council who alone can prevent the young clergyman's execution for the murder of Avis Linnell.

Richeson made no plea for commutation.

The visit of the governor and council to the Suffolk county jail is one that is usually made at this time of year and was not with the object of interviewing Richeson.

The cell of the young clergyman was inspected, as were those in other parts of the jail and Richeson was asked if he had any complaints.

Members of the party stated after the visit that Richeson appeared in normal state of mind and health, although he looked very thin and somewhat pale. He made no complaint regarding his treatment and exchanged very few words with members of the party.

Counsel for Richeson has made no effort to obtain commutation for Richeson.

A plea for such executive act must come first to the governor, who has the option of rejecting it or submitting it to the pardon committee of the executive council. If it reaches the pardon committee the customary hearing may be held, either publicly or privately.

The recommendations of the committee are then placed before the council and the recommendations of that body are submitted to the governor.

William Morse, counsel for Richeson, has seen his client weekly but today he said that he had not decided when the plea would be made.

STRONG FEELING

AGAINST AMERICANS EXPRESSED
BY MANAGUANS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 6.—An extraordinary outburst of anti-American feeling led to the arrest last night of 50 of the more prominent ring-leaders, who are being held in detention until Secretary of State Knox has departed.

This is the first indication publicly expressed of opposition to the Central American trip of the secretary of state.

SONG RECITAL

WAS GIVEN AT THE KIRK STREET CHURCH

An interesting song recital was given in the vestry of the Kirk Street church last night for the benefit of the Women's association of the church. The attendance was very large and the affair was very successful. The songs were all favorites, and were illustrated by a series of ten pictures beautifully colored and set in a great portrait frame. The singing, which was by members of the choir, Mrs. Wm. G. Speake, Mrs. Arthur C. Spalding and Charles H. Howard, was behind the scenes. The titles of the songs and those who sang them were: "The Spirit of '76," the music for which was "The White Cockade," as played when the Americans marched forth to meet the British at Concord, 1876; "Bells," by Frank Dupre, Frank K. Stearns and Master Roland Dill; "In Old Madrid," Mrs. D. E. Yarnall; "Teach and Rachel," J. ### BOARD OF TRADE

TO HOLD MEETING IN INTEREST OF PROPOSED BOULEVARD

At the meeting of the executive committee of the Lowell board of trade held yesterday afternoon at the board's rooms in the Central block it was decided to hold a meeting Friday night for the purpose of furthering the legislation of the proposed boulevard between this city and Lawrence. It was decided to hold a general meeting of the Lowell Automobile League, also the automobile owners and drivers. It was also voted at the meeting to instruct the automobile league's committee of legislation and highways to co-operate with the similar committee of the board of trade on matters which both organizations were working for the same purpose. The same plan was voted for the committee on traffic regulations and the league's committee will seek to aid the board of trade's committee in securing the passage of a city traffic regulation ordinance by the present city government.

ART ASSOCIATION

TO SOLICIT MONEY FOR THE WHISTLER HOUSE

The finance committee of the Lowell Art association met yesterday at the rooms of the Union National bank, and ways and means were discussed for reducing the fixed charges of the society by eliminating the mortgage debt on the Whistler house in Worthen street and the notes now carried in addition to act as treasurer pro tem. J. Edward Gibson was appointed subject to confirmation by the league. Mr. Gibson, who has been taking care of Mr. Carney's league matters during his illness, reported that thus far he believed he had received 103 membership fees and said he would furnish a complete list of the paid members to date within a day or two.

ON THE PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY OF THE DIRECTORS

THE HOUSE IS MORTGAGED FOR $1500, AND IN ADDITION THERE ARE NOTES OUTSTANDING FOR ABOUT $2000 MORE, SECURED ONLY BY THE SIGNATURE OF FOUR OF THE DIRECTORS WHO ARE PERSONALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THAT SUM.

At the meeting steps were taken for the active solicitation of aid in the form of direct contributions from the friends of the association, in the hope of raising before the annual meeting in April nearly $6000 to remove these obligations and leave the society free to work.

WOMAN BEAT OUT FLAMES WITH HER HANDS

MALDEN, March 6.—Miss Julia Washington, a servant in the home of Mrs. A. A. West at 17 Rockland avenue, was seriously burned shortly before 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon while ironing in the kitchen. The woman had placed a light garment near the stove and the garment caught fire, the flames spreading quickly to other clothes. Her cries attracted the attention of Mrs. West, who ran to the kitchen and beat out the flames on the woman's clothing with her bare hands, being quite badly burned. Miss Washington received severe burns about the hands and face and but for the timely aid of Mrs. West she would probably have been burned to death. A still alarm was sent in and a chemical company extinguished the fire with a small loss.

SALISBURY BEACH

Hearing on Two Bills to Make it a Public Reservation

A hearing was made at the state house yesterday upon two bills before the committee intended to make a public reservation of what is now known as Salisbury beach. One bill, that of Rep. A. Franklin Priest of Haverhill, provides that the Metropolitan park commissioners may take in fee or otherwise, by purchase, gift or eminent domain as a public reservation that portion of Salisbury beach, in the town of Salisbury, between the New Hampshire state boundary, the Atlantic ocean, Merrimack river and marshes and that the commission may expend not exceeding $500,000 and that the town of Salisbury shall be deemed part of the Metropolitan parks district. The other bill, that of John O. Evans simply provides that the portion of Salisbury beach in the town of Salisbury is made a state reserve.

For these two bills Rep. Priest submitted a substitute bill for the setting of the land bounded by the Atlantic ocean, the Hampton and Merrimack rivers, the marsh lands and the state line of New Hampshire and Massachusetts, as a reservation to be placed in the hands of a commission of three persons to serve without pay who shall administer the territory as a public

A NEW REMEDY FOR SKIN TROUBLES

Many skin troubles are not caused by the blood as most people think. External treatment is therefore the most direct and rational way to effect a cure. A chemist who was convinced of this fact found that an extract of the plant Juniperus Oxycedrus was most soothing and healing to an irritated, inflamed or diseased skin. By a special method of treatment this vegetable extract is now combined with other antiseptic, healing ingredients and is known as Cadum. This new compound has cured thousands of cases of eczema and other distressing skin diseases after other remedies had failed. It stops the terrible itching of eczema at once, and begins healing with the first application. Cadum can be used with confidence in all skin affections of infants and adults. It has proved a blessing to many who have suffered for years from tormenting and disfiguring skin diseases. Cadum is different from anything else. It acts quickly upon pimples, sores, ulcers, eruptions, rashes, rough skin, blotches, chaffings, scalp sores, itching piles, etc. All druggists, 10c and 25c.

THE PROBATE COURT

Session Held in This City Today

The probate court sat in this city this morning with Justice McIntire as presiding judge. The first matter brought up was the continued case of Mrs. Thomas J. Willett, who petitioned the court for the custody of her grandchild, Daisy B. Beaulieu, daughter of Charles Edmond Beaulieu. The last witness on the petitioner's side, Agent Charles F. Richardson of the Humane society, was heard and he was followed by the Misses Beaulieu, sisters of Mr. Beaulieu, and two other witnesses. The court will convene again tomorrow.

DRAINAGE CANAL

To be Inspected by Sec'y Stimson

CHICAGO, March 6.—To the city of Chicago the most important feature of the visit of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson is his inspection today of the drainage canal. The trip was planned because of the request of the city and sanitary district to extract 10,000 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Michigan. It is claimed that much is necessary to properly dilute the sewage of the city. The district now has the right to take 147 feet a second from the lake. Unless the request is granted it is claimed all the fish in the Illinois river will be killed.

COL. ROOSEVELT

BEGAN HIS WORK AS A JUROR TODAY

MINNEOLA, L. I., March 6.—For the first time in his life Col. Roosevelt served today as a juror at the county courthouse here. He is earning $3 a day.

When Col. Roosevelt reached Mineola this morning in his automobile from Cyster Bay he found a host of reporters, photographers and people of the village waiting to see him. When the court opened for the day Justice Putnam of the supreme court, the presiding judge, announced that the case which had been continued from yesterday would take up most of today's session.

It was unlikely that Col. Roosevelt would be called to sit in a case today, the court officers said, but owing to the fact that the present case might be completed in time to necessitate the selection of another jury today the jurors were not excused. Col. Roosevelt accordingly had to put in the time as best he could. He was led into the grand jury room, where he settled down in a chair with a book. Col. Roosevelt was asked if he would comment on Secretary Stimson's speech in Chicago last night in support of President Taft.

"I don't care to say anything about that," he replied.

The colonel was somewhat annoyed at the persistent attention of the camera men, who followed him in squads with every step.

"It's awfully hard," said he. "To smile and look pleasant when your picture is taken so often."

NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION WASHINGTON, March 6.—With workers compensation and the prevention of industrial accidents as the subjects of discussion, August Belmont, chairman of the workers' compensation department, presided at the forenoon session of today's meeting of the National Civic Federation.

Rules adopted by the License Commission of the City of Lowell, for the granting of licenses to sell intoxicating liquors for the License Year 1912-1913.

The attention of all persons interested in the granting of liquor licenses is called to the following requirements:

How to Apply. On application to the Clerk of the Commission at our office, blanks will be furnished to those desiring to make application for license. The applicant must state clearly the location of the building for which the license is desired, naming all entrances, regular or backhairs, and must also state the number of rooms on each floor to be used for the sale, use or storage of liquors. It must be signed with the full name of each applicant, and must be filed in the office of each applicant in the license, whether financial or otherwise.

Any person making application for a license must personally appear before the Commission upon written request in order that he may be questioned in reference thereto, and the Commission may require any statement which may be made before it and papers which may be filed with it, relative to applications for licenses, so he sworn to before a member of the commission or the clerk thereof. Applications must be made between the dates of March 6 and March 25, inclusive.

Objections. Notice of all applications for licenses shall, at the expense of the applicant, to be paid in advance, be published in some Lowell newspaper not less than ten days before the Commission will act thereon.

If, before the expiration of the ten days following the publication of the notice as above set forth, the owner of any real estate within twenty-five feet of the premises described in an application for a license, or the interest of a common victualer to sell liquors to be drunk on the premises, notifies the Licensing Board in writing that he objects to the granting of the license, no license to sell intoxicating liquors to be drunk on said premises shall be granted, unless the applicant, before the expiration of the ten days preceding the date of his application, have held a license for the sale of intoxicating liquors upon said premises.

Other objections to the granting of the license, either on account of the unfitness of the applicant, or otherwise, may be made to the Commission at any time before the application is acted upon. The laws of the commonwealth do not compel the licensing board to grant licenses in absence of objection. Upon objection being made to the granting of the license, except the objection by an adjoining owner of real estate as above provided, the commission may, in its discretion, if so desired, grant a hearing to parties interested.

THREE LIVES LOST

Men Trapped in Room Perished at a Fire in Quincy Last Night

QUINCY, March 5.—Three men perished in a little attic room in the boarding house conducted by Alexander Proverb at 661 Washington street were burned to death in a fire which was probably caused by an overturned kerosene lamp and two others narrowly escaped death from the flames.

The dead men are Daniel Graham, 34 years old, a riveter employed by the Fore River Shipbuilding company; Daniel Leary, 35 years old, a riveter who was employed by the Fore River Shipbuilding company; and Patrick McDonald, 33 years old, who was employed as a house carpenter in North Weymouth, just across the river from the shipbuilding yard.

The men resided at Charles McDonald, 40 years old, a brother of Patrick McDonald, who worked with his brother in North Weymouth, and John Kelly, a machinist, employed in the Fore River shipbuilding yard. Charles McDonald was severely burned on the hands and was almost demented when he was informed that his brother was dead.

Landlord Gives Warning. About 9:20 last evening Mr. Proverb, who was on the lower floor of the house, smelled smoke and began an investigation. At the same time John Ryan, a boarder who was in the bathroom, smelled smoke also, and upon glancing toward the ceiling saw the flames over his head.

Perceiving that the upper part of the house was a mass of flames Ryan ran downstairs and told Mr. Proverb. The lodging-house keeper ran upstairs to the attic, shouting as he ran, to arouse the boarders.

The halls and the rooms on the upper floors were filled with smoke and the flames were spreading with startling rapidity through the walls. Notwithstanding the great danger to which he was exposed, Proverb continued groping his way until he reached the landing leading to the attic.

There the heat was like that of a furnace and the smoke was so dense that he was unable to see. He crawled along the floor to the door of the room occupied by Graham, Leary and McDonald, and as he made his way through the inferno he heard a groan. He could not see the man, but feeling about him on the floor he came in contact with the body of a man who was sinking into unconsciousness.

Drags Charles to Safety. Proverb carried the man from the hallway to the staircase, and, with the utmost difficulty, carried him downstairs, as yet unaware of his identity. When he reached the street, exhausted and almost overcome by the smoke himself, Proverb saw that it was Charles McDonald, who was severely burned on the hands and was senseless.

Some of the other boarders who had got into the street took care of McDonald, while Proverb, although faint and gasping from the smoke which he inhaled, went back again to the attic to rescue the others. When he reached the landing at the top of the house, however, he found that it was utterly impossible to enter the room and live.

He called to his boarders, but received no answer. Realizing that he could not hope to go into the attic and come out alive, he staggered downstairs and into the street. As soon as he recovered from the smoke he ran to box 72, a short distance from the house, and gave the alarm.

Forced to Handcuff Lodger. The men of House 4, whose house is near the Proverb house, were on the scene within a moment or two, but the upper part of the building was a mass of flames before they raised a ladder. Meantime Patrolman Thorne, whose route includes Washington street, went into the house as he was informed that some of the lodgers yet remained in their rooms. He heard shouts from the second floor and from ascending to the room of John Kelly, he found that man at the window looking out into the street as if he were unconscious of his danger.

Thorne spoke to Kelly, who ordered him out of the building. The officer told him that he was in great danger and that he would probably be burned to death if he remained in his room, but Kelly paid no attention to him. Thorne seized him by the arm and strove to lead him to the hall and thence to the street. The lodger resisted violently, however, and Thorne was obliged to use considerable force to restrain him. Kelly struggled so vigorously, however, that Thorne found it necessary to handcuff him before he was able to get him to a place of safety. Kelly was sent to the police station, charged with drunkenness.

Believe They Suffocated. While this was going on the firemen had raised ladders on the rear of the house, from which several streams of water were played upon the flames, and six minutes after they began work the fire was extinguished.

When they entered the attic they found two of the bodies of the dead men on a sofa and the third on the floor beside it. Medical Examiner Jones and the authorities who saw the bodies believe that the men were suffocated before they were burned. The stairway to the attic was so narrow that the bodies were brought to the street with considerable labor. The three bodies were removed to Hall's undertaking shop.

Charles McDonald was sent to the Hotel Des Moines, where his injuries were treated by Dr. Cushman, after which he was sent to the police station for further medical attention. When he was informed that his brother was dead he lost his reason, and the gravest fears were expressed for him last night.

He was so terribly affected by the accident that he was unable to give any information to the officers.

Graham, who came here about two weeks ago, had not yet gone to work in the shipyard as he was waiting for a "heater boy" to help him in his work as a riveter. Very little is known about the men in Quincy, but it is thought that they came from Bath, Me., where they had previously employed in ship-building.

The house, which is a 2½-story wooden building, was formerly a part of the Lemuel Baxter estate, but is now owned by Mrs. Laura Peters of South street. The loss was about $3500.

The New York colleges. In a recent publication of the Municipal Journal of the city of New York, Mr. O'Neill wrote the article on the use of models by the municipal departments; the purposes for which they may be used; teaching principles and the explaining work done or contemplated; materials used in the making of models; cost of the materials and the labor.

Interesting Article. The article is a very interesting one and reads in part as follows: The department of public health of the American Museum of Natural History of New York deals with that gold of natural history which concerns the relation of the human organism to its environment, and in particular with those problems which arise when large numbers of human beings are concentrated on small areas, making necessary new methods of providing for fundamental needs. One of the most difficult and pressing of these problems is the proper disposal of the body wastes. The water-carriage system of sewerage solves this problem as far as the individual dwelling is concerned, but merely passes it along for the community as a whole to solve. The large volumes of polluting material pouring from our cities into streams and harbors not only lower property values, and render objectionable to the senses these places which might serve as a recreation ground and source of pleasure to the people, but may constitute an actual danger to human life and health, as in those instances where one community pollutes the stream which serves another as a source of public water supply. Modern sanitary science, however, offers methods of purifying these wastes, and it is with such methods that a section of the public health exhibit deals.

To the exhibit of the Metropolitan sewerage commission of New York, held at the American Museum in May, 1911, the department of public health at the Museum contributed a series of models showing graphically some of the relations of the commission's investigations to the health of New York City, and some of the principal methods of purifying city sewage.

John H. O'Neill. The article is a very interesting one and reads in part as follows: The department of public health of the American Museum of Natural History of New York deals with that gold of natural history which concerns the relation of the human organism to its environment, and in particular with those problems which arise when large numbers of human beings are concentrated on small areas, making necessary new methods of providing for fundamental needs. One of the most difficult and pressing of these problems is the proper disposal of the body wastes. The water-carriage system of sewerage solves this problem as far as the individual dwelling is concerned, but merely passes it along for the community as a whole to solve. The large volumes of polluting material pouring from our cities into streams and harbors not only lower property values, and render objectionable to the senses these places which might serve as a recreation ground and source of pleasure to the people, but may constitute an actual danger to human life and health, as in those instances where one community pollutes the stream which serves another as a source of public water supply. Modern sanitary science, however, offers methods of purifying these wastes, and it is with such methods that a section of the public health exhibit deals.

To the exhibit of the Metropolitan sewerage commission of New York, held at the American Museum in May, 1911, the department of public health at the Museum contributed a series of models showing graphically some of the relations of the commission's investigations to the health of New York City, and some of the principal methods of purifying city sewage.

One of the most significant developments of public health work in the last few years has been in the direction of public education and one of the most important methods of instruction is the use of exhibits bringing out desired facts in graphic form. Many state health departments have already made beginning in the preparation of models to illustrate certain phases of water supply and sewage disposal.

The remainder of the article tells and illustrates the possible dangers to health resulting from unsanitary conditions.

This is something new and one of the greatest studies of the present time.

While attending Tech, Mr. O'Neill, in company with three other students, went and investigated the water conditions of the waters of Gloucester. They made a report of what they found and their suggestions were later adopted. The city of Gloucester was grateful for the valuable information and paid the young men for their work. Other similar experiments were made by the young men before he received his present position.

The New York colleges. In a recent publication of the Municipal Journal of the city of New York, Mr. O'Neill wrote the article on the use of models by the municipal departments; the purposes for which they may be used; teaching principles and the explaining work done or contemplated; materials used in the making of models; cost of the materials and the labor.

MINERS' DEMANDS

Were Refused by the Coal Operators

NEW YORK, March 6.—The anthracite coal miners' demands for increased pay, recognition of the union, a shorter working day and other changes were unanimously rejected yesterday afternoon by 47 operators. The operators devoted half an hour to consideration of the demands and adjourned sine die after appointing a committee to acquaint the United Mine Workers of America with their decision.

This committee was clothed with full power to act for all the operators and will formulate its reply at a meeting next Monday afternoon for presentation to the miners on Wednesday, March 13.

The decisive action of the operators was unexpected. It was believed that the miners would last several hours and that a compromise would be suggested. At the conclusion of the meeting, however, one of the operators declared that the adoption of the resolution would not prevent the committee from making a counter-proposition to the miners.

The belief is growing among the operators, he added, that there will be no general strike of 150,000 men in the Pennsylvania fields affected by the decision, but that operators would rather face a general strike than advance wages 20 percent and in consequence be compelled to increase the price of coal.

THE STRIKE SITUATION

It is really amusing to read of an investigation of the Lawrence strike before a committee of congress at which the most damaging witnesses are all socialists from various parts of the country. The great point which the socialists are making against the people of Lawrence is that the police prevented relief committees from taking children out of the city. That implies a breach of law that will give congress a pretext for investigation. The socialists are delighted over the turn affairs have taken and over the failure of the strikers to return to work.

Most of these, it seems, are afraid to return as the picketing system now adopted does not stop at mere persuasion but extends to holding up the people on the streets and, as a girl testified in Washington, tearing the clothes off them to prevent them going to work.

Some of the social workers who came to Lawrence, college professors who never saw the inside of a mill, now know all about it. Some of them talk rank socialism without any real knowledge of the situation beyond the fact that they visited a few families and heard their stories.

The strike is now before congress, and the committee on labor may hold an investigation in Lawrence as the people of the city are anxious for an opportunity to refute the falsehoods given out by the leaders, the social workers and others from distant states.

The people of this state are now awaiting the next move in the Lawrence mill situation. It was confidently hoped that the increase offered by the mills would be accepted by the strikers as a reasonable compromise. It is said to range from 5 to 12 per cent, and to average 8 per cent. The increase, we understand, has been so arranged that it will come in largest amount to those who have the smallest weekly wage, in order, if possible, to afford them a means of living.

It is believed that the operatives would readily return to work were they not prevented by the influence of the leaders from other states.

These leaders, it is clear, do not want the strike settled, and if they can hold the operatives in idleness it may come to a question of closing the mills altogether and letting the operatives seek employment elsewhere.

If the operatives follow the leaders whose aim is revolution they can blame only themselves if they bring about a condition under which they will not be needed in Lawrence and will have to leave the city.

It is a fact that many of the strikers must be in want, but the leaders are apparently satisfied with present conditions as it is stated that they receive large sums daily for the relief of the strikers. Charitable people everywhere are willing to aid honest strikers in distress; but if it appears that the Lawrence operatives are aiding a revolutionary movement, projected by anarchists, then this flow of money from far distant points for the relief of the strikers will soon be cut off.

ROOSEVELT SHOULD WITHDRAW

Already it is apparent that Col. Roosevelt will be the worst beaten candidate of prominence that appeared for a long time if he lets his name go into the republican convention. Indeed he would probably rank merely among the "also rans," and with Roosevelt will go down probably for all time the idea of a third term, consecutive or otherwise, for any candidate. The third term is against the custom that has prevailed since the days of Washington. There was a movement to give Grant a third term when Garfield was nominated in 1880; but although Grant had lived as a retired ex-president for four years, the people did not want to break away from the time honored custom of limiting every president to a second term at most. The agitation in favor of renominating Grant ran so high that an anti-third term convention met in St. Louis, May 6, 1880, and adopted resolutions protesting against the proposed third term.

In 1876, when the agitation was begun, the house of representatives at Washington adopted resolutions declaring that any departure from the precedent established by Washington and other presidents of the United States would be unwise, unpatriotic and fraught with peril to our free institutions. The resolution was carried almost unanimously. Many of the states adopted a similar resolution in their platforms so that the sentiment against the third term was quite general throughout the country. All that action referred not to a third consecutive term but to a third term after the former president had been four years in private life. Roosevelt occupies a position precisely similar today and his plea that it is a non-consecutive term he seeks is ludicrous. He knows that he is running for a nomination in violation of one of the most cherished customs of this republic. He knows the country has set its face against the third term in the past; but he is, or was, vain enough to believe that he could sway the people at will; that he would be nominated in spite of the traditions of the past and in spite of all opposition.

But Col. Roosevelt will get the shock of his life if he lets his name go before the convention. Democrats are not desirous to aid the republican party by advice; and the leaders would doubtless enjoy the spectacle of the foremost citizen, the man who was honored by European courts as the greatest American, finally subjected to the bone-crushing process of being transformed to a political pancake, so to speak, under the great and ponderous read roller of the republican national convention.

The only way in which Roosevelt can avoid such a fate is to reconsider his decision, withdraw his name and return to the quiet sanctum of the Outlook, there to uphold "his policies" with a new and clearer conception of his proper place in public esteem.

THE DICTAGRAPH AS AN EAVESDROPPER

In all secret deliberations of an illegal native hereafter the participants will take good care that the eavesdropping dictagraph is not within hearing. The manner in which this instrument was used to get evidence against the alleged dynamiters at Indianapolis and Los Angeles was very remarkable. That a dictagraph should be concealed in the desk of President Ryan for months without detection shows the possibilities of the machine in securing evidence. The conversations carried on in Ryan's office were conveyed by wire to rooms below and taken down verbatim by two stenographers so that each might corroborate the other. Hereafter the criminals who plot crime within four walls will speak in whispers too low for the walls that have ears to hear.

SEEN AND HEARD

Henry M. Southworth, the supervising architect of the new Y. M. C. A. building, resolved on involuntary bath at the new building a few days ago. Mr. Southworth was walking along the edge of the swimming pool in which there was about four feet of water. He had just remarked to one of the workmen that the day was very cold and that it gave promise of a very severe night when he slipped and fell into the pool. It was then that he realized for a certainty that the day was cold and he looked the part of the original ice man. He did a marathon in his room in Summer street where he shed his coat of ice and cuddled close to the steam radiator. Mr. Southworth is a cold bath advocate, but he says he doesn't like to have the bath thrust upon him unawares.

PEOPLE OF NOTE
Edward Robinson, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Arts, says that the use of the $1,000,000 gift of Francis L. Leland will not be decided upon by the board of trustees of the institution until the regular meeting on the third Monday in April. He added that the money would not be expended as had been reported, in new buildings to house the collections of J. Pierpont Morgan, which were soon to be brought over to this country. "Mr. Leland's gift was without conditions of any sort," said Mr. Robinson, "and we may use it as we will. None of it will be put in buildings, because the city appropriates the funds for that purpose, and we are simply the tenants here. No gift is ever devoted to building. We have now a request before the board of estimate for money to erect new buildings to house the art treasures of Mr. Morgan, and we hope the request will be granted. That will come, of course, only after some time. I cannot say any more about the plans just yet."

Mr. Leland, whose gift of $1,000,000 to the Metropolitan Museum came as a complete surprise, said that he had made the donation without condition of any sort because he wished to see New York's museum as good as the best in the world. "I have a pride in seeing New York possessing institutions the equal of any in the world," he said, "and I have chosen to give this money for the advancement of art because I believe that philanthropic needs in the city are well provided for. I have no desire to perpetuate myself in this way and did not stimulate that my name be given to the fund."

Mr. Leland is president of the New York County National Bank.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE
Telling a story through which runs a vivid religious sentiment that is heart-touching and yet is not of the nature to bring offense, "The Rosary," the play of Edward H. Rose, which proved such a big success last season, is repeating this year with added brilliancy. While the central figure is that of a Catholic priest, the character drawn is not in any way involved. Rev. Brian Kelly is presented as a man of God, whose greatest thought is the good he can do for his fellowman of whatever creed or of no creed, and Harrington Reynolds who fills the character, seems to have caught in his conception of the role as the audience at the Opera House will see when the play is presented tomorrow for three days. He shows a keen Irish sense of humor and good will as a foil to his priestly calling, and thus is able to solve the depths of a Jesuitic tragedy and reflect a message to home that is as near destruction through the machinations of a designing villain who seeks revenge because another has won the woman he loves. The play brings the loving wife into disrepute, after ruining her sister, but also plots the wrecking of the fortunes of his successful rival, who believes him a great friend. It is the office of the priest to unravel the tangle and restore tranquility, perfecting a moral that should be witnessed by everybody, as well as enjoyed.

THOMAS E. SHEA
Commencing Monday, March 11th, the popular actor, Thomas Shea will play a four days' engagement at the Opera House, with matinees on Tuesday and Thursday. As the bill for the opening night Mr. Shea will present a new play. It bears the title of "A Man and His Wife" and is a society girl's romance. The play is dramatized from the famous novel "The Spell." Very clearly in the presentation of its four acts, it wins the favor of its audience and maintains interest throughout. It tells the story of a man born in the wilds of Maine who rises in the world until he becomes a ruler in New York. A society girl, cleverer than himself, has married him for his wealth. Benjamin Clark, the husband and banker, has a high sense of a wife's honor and the sanctity of the home. When he finds that the trust marriage, making love to Mrs. Clark, he dismisses him from his home. In the end, the play is a triumph. It is a society girl's romance, which threatens to ruin Clark; in this situation, the latter suspects his wife of still loving Reed and proposes to free her by means of divorce. In order that she may marry. From this point she begins to see the true character of both men and in two time and a half hours, she is free. The play is a grand strong play that is attractive for its impressive plot, its excellent literary treatment, many powerful scenes and artistic performance. In Clark, the baker, Mr. Shea has a role that gives him numerous opportunities for effective work and accords them with remarkable ability to life.

the Chicago-Philadelphia opera company and to sing in orchestral concert and recitals of her own. Already she has made arrangements to reappear in Boston.

Good report comes from Berlin of the fortunes of Willy Hess's chamber concerts there. His trio—Georg Schumann, the composer and pianist, Dechant, the violinist, and Mr. Hess himself as violinist—has already found a larger public there than the Hess quartets ever gained in Boston.

Much interest is shown in London over the reported decision by experts that a picture recently bought by Mr. Bonington of that city is Rembrandt's "Rathkeller," which dropped out of sight many years ago. The date assigned is 1630, when the artist was about 26 years old. The picture is 33 by 48 inches and in spite of restorations is said to be in good condition, with excellent coloring.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE
Telling a story through which runs a vivid religious sentiment that is heart-touching and yet is not of the nature to bring offense, "The Rosary," the play of Edward H. Rose, which proved such a big success last season, is repeating this year with added brilliancy. While the central figure is that of a Catholic priest, the character drawn is not in any way involved. Rev. Brian Kelly is presented as a man of God, whose greatest thought is the good he can do for his fellowman of whatever creed or of no creed, and Harrington Reynolds who fills the character, seems to have caught in his conception of the role as the audience at the Opera House will see when the play is presented tomorrow for three days. He shows a keen Irish sense of humor and good will as a foil to his priestly calling, and thus is able to solve the depths of a Jesuitic tragedy and reflect a message to home that is as near destruction through the machinations of a designing villain who seeks revenge because another has won the woman he loves. The play brings the loving wife into disrepute, after ruining her sister, but also plots the wrecking of the fortunes of his successful rival, who believes him a great friend. It is the office of the priest to unravel the tangle and restore tranquility, perfecting a moral that should be witnessed by everybody, as well as enjoyed.

THOMAS E. SHEA
Commencing Monday, March 11th, the popular actor, Thomas Shea will play a four days' engagement at the Opera House, with matinees on Tuesday and Thursday. As the bill for the opening night Mr. Shea will present a new play. It bears the title of "A Man and His Wife" and is a society girl's romance. The play is dramatized from the famous novel "The Spell." Very clearly in the presentation of its four acts, it wins the favor of its audience and maintains interest throughout. It tells the story of a man born in the wilds of Maine who rises in the world until he becomes a ruler in New York. A society girl, cleverer than himself, has married him for his wealth. Benjamin Clark, the husband and banker, has a high sense of a wife's honor and the sanctity of the home. When he finds that the trust marriage, making love to Mrs. Clark, he dismisses him from his home. In the end, the play is a triumph. It is a society girl's romance, which threatens to ruin Clark; in this situation, the latter suspects his wife of still loving Reed and proposes to free her by means of divorce. In order that she may marry. From this point she begins to see the true character of both men and in two time and a half hours, she is free. The play is a grand strong play that is attractive for its impressive plot, its excellent literary treatment, many powerful scenes and artistic performance. In Clark, the baker, Mr. Shea has a role that gives him numerous opportunities for effective work and accords them with remarkable ability to life.

"BABY MINE"
The greatest comedy success of a decade, "Baby Mine," right out of Boston with its eight weeks' engagement at the Lyceum theatre and theatre for one solid year at Daly's theatre, New York, and is now in its second year in London, at the Criterion theatre is booked for presentation here on Tuesday, March 12th under the direction of William A. Brady, Ltd. "Baby Mine" is the work of Margaret Mayo and is a new witness to women's play-craft and what is more, to women's sense of humor. The idea of "Baby Mine" is simple but its working out is highly ingenious and diverting. Its appeal is universal and irresistible. It is a comedy of the heart, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg, and negotiations are under way for its production in South America, South Africa, Australia and Japan.

Man Fined For Assault on a Neighbor

The case of Vanillas Demopoulos charged with assault and battery on Demetris Apostolou took up the greater portion of this morning's session of the police court. After nearly a score of witnesses had been heard, the court found the defendant guilty and ordered him to pay a fine of $5. Mr. George F. Fox appeared for the defendant and the government's case was cared for by Lawyer A. G. Hume.

From the testimony brought out, the assault took place last Sunday afternoon about one o'clock in a house in Suffolk street. The defendant resides on the lower floor and the complainant lives on the second floor. There was an ash barrel on the lower piazza and when the complainant started to remove it, claiming that it was his property, he was assaulted by the defendant, the latter using a baseball bat.

The testimony throughout was rather conflicting but it was evident that the bat was used.

It was apparent that the assault was the result of previous trouble between the men and for that reason the court after finding the defendant guilty imposed a fine of $5.

Drunken Offenders
Denis Mahoney was arraigned before Judge Pickman this morning on a complaint charging him with being drunk. He entered a plea of guilty, but insisted as he promised to do better in the future the court placed him on probation for six months.

Thomas F. Coughlin was fined $5 and there was one first offender who was fined $2.

Fine of $5 Imposed
Michael Finnegan, who was yesterday found guilty of the larceny of 75 cents' worth of chewing gum from a woman who conducts a store at the corner of Hale and Howard streets, was this morning ordered to pay a fine of $5.

KEITH'S LOWELL THEATRE

Any one of the eight big acts at Keith's this week is good for there is not a weak spot throughout the bill and several of them would make good headliners. "The Country Kids," Gus Edwards' great condensed musical comedy which includes nine lively comedies and singers headed by Fred Hackett and charming little Gertrude Morgan is an entire show in itself. Little Miss Morgan possesses a peculiar charm which brings the entire audience to her feet particularly the male portion. The set includes 10 musical numbers, all Gus Edwards' own dancing, a minstrel first part, the barn dance and the Rhythmical Ball. No one can enjoy a set than that of "China Sals" which is a whole country school entertainment by himself ever came to Lowell. It's a huge laugh. The Harlots do the fastest and most daring acrobatic and hand-balancing act ever seen here. The hard work of other performers is as child's play to them. They work nine minutes without a single stall and become a bewitching number. The amazing "stunt" Whittaker's bronches direct from a Montana ranch are finely educated and handsome specimens of the equine species. Fred Jarvis and Ivy Leighton in "The Fellow and Girl on the Bench" have a delightful comedy act that includes singing and dancing. Dan and Jessie Hunt mix up singing, dancing, comedy, and instrumental music in most pleasing manner. Miller and Zellman have a cute little comedy drama entitled "The Woman Who Dared." Claudie and Scarlet have one of the most popular musical acts on the bill. On their banjos they play the old, old songs of "Long Ago" while the words are thrown on the screen and the boys and girls join in and sing with great gusto and peace of mind. It's one great bill.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The three-act comedy, "Oh! Uncle John," one of Sidney Grady's best plays, being given this week at the Merrimack Square theatre by the members of "Our Stock company," is meeting with genuine success at each performance. The piece is one of the well-known playwright's brightest and most humorous productions, a fact that should assure all of its superior qualities. Its humor is of the laughable, satirical and funny variety, and it is a gem in making an hour and one-half of real enjoyment. Kendal Weston, under whose personal direction the piece is given, appears in one of the leading parts, a comedy character in which this popular entertainer finds himself very cleverly cast. Feltz Featherstone, the husband who plans to play a trick on his wife, but who finds the tables turned on himself and suffers considerable humiliation as a result. Mr. Weston is especially funny. As Penelope, the maid, Miss Constance Jackson, also pleasing. Charles Stevens as Uncle John and Miss Jessie Graham, as Mrs. Featherstone, are both adequate. West 12½, a Lowell boy, is also found in a part that gives him opportunity to display his worth. The singing of the piece is excellently done.

The troupe of minstrel singers and entertainers of rare merit, some in the commendation which the entire bill deserves, and Miss Anna McMahon, soloist, and Fritz's Educational Dogs, are also features that are greatly appreciated. The photo plays and views of world-wide events, provided exclusively to the Merrimack Square theatre, are added attractions for the week. On Friday night selections from the opera "Baron Trenck" will be featured by the Merrimack Square Theatre Company orchestra.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC
Today is the day that amateurs reign supreme at the Academy of Music. Amateurs in the afternoon and amateurs in the evening.

The regular show is the best in Lowell for the money. "Coopers and the Tractor" presents a farce in a farce. It's a great, wacky, funny, and then all guessing. "The Halfpenny Stock Company" in "The Midnight Visitor" presents a refined dramatic playlet that can't be beat. Next week is circus week. Our photo-plays have never been seen in Lowell before.

Millady's Toilet Table

By MRS. D'AILLE

There are simple home treatments that keep the hair and complexion young like the Fox-Champagne cream, the soap and hair, and makes the hair grow. Just put a couple of cornmeal in a fruit jar and mix with an original package of therapy, sprinkle a little on the head and brush out. It brushes out easily and leaves the hair clean, bright, wavy and rich in color.

To keep the face youthful and fair, make a simple lotion by dissolving an original package of monoxide in a half pint of witch hazel and rub over the face, neck and arms every morning. Your complexion will soon be smooth, clear, satin-like and free from blemishes.

Wild hairs or fuzzy growths can be made to vanish quickly by applying delectable paste. Mix enough powdered delectable with water to cover the hairy surface; apply and after two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin, and the hairs will be gone.

Chaps, cold sores, pimples, eczema and skin eruptions disappear if you rub Mother's Salve into the affected surfaces before retiring. It quickly heals sores, cuts, burns, wounds, etc. It is antiseptic as well as healing and lessens danger of blood poisoning.

THE BOULEVARD WELLS

Have Received Good Cleaning Out and Water Tastes Better

If the city water at your home looks clearer and tastes better it is due to the fact that the old wells at the boulevard have received a good cleaning out.

The work of cleaning the wells was begun several days ago and will be finished tomorrow. Sixteen men have been working on the wells and the average number of wells cleaned in a day was 15. The wells received a thorough pumping out and the screens were well cleaned. The pumping given the wells not only improved the condition of the water but increased the pumping capacity on 3,500,000 gallons a day to nearly 5,000,000 gallons. The work of cleaning the wells will swell the water department pay roll but it is money well spent. The reservoir was a little low before the wells were cleaned and now there is more than 20 feet of water in it.

Steel For New Reservoir
A car load of steel bars to be used for the reinforcement of the new reservoir in Centralville is on its way to Lowell from Pittsburgh, Pa. The work of bending and shapling the steel will be done by the water department and all work connected with the reservoir with the exception of the cement work will be done by city labor. Cyrus Barton has the contract for the cement work and is supposed to begin operations about March 15.

MAN FOUND DEAD

he was a man of good habits and never used intoxicants. She arose at 5 o'clock this morning and discovered her husband was not in his room. She then went down stairs for coal, and when she reached the top of the first flight of stairs, she was dumbfounded to see the body of her husband lying in a pool of blood at the foot of the stairs. The feet were on the second step of the stairs, while the body was lying on the floor with the head turned almost under one shoulder. Mrs. Somers called for help, and Peter O'Hagan, who occupied the second floor of the house was soon on the spot and after notifying the police he called in Undertaker McDermott who removed the body to his waterworks.

CHARLES G. SOMERS.
Victim of Accident or Poil Play.

Wife Suspects Poil Play
Mrs. Somers who talks very little English said to a reporter of The Sun this morning that her husband was a soldier man especially during Lent, when he would not take a drop of liquor. He occasionally took a glass of wine she said, but never drank anything else. She said he was of a quiet disposition, but she really believed he had enemies on account of his business, that of constable, and she is under the impression that he was struck by an unknown person who made good his escape.

The neighbors of Mr. Somers who have known him for years corroborate her assertions. Mr. O'Hagan heard a noise in the building shortly after 11 o'clock last night but he paid no attention to it as he thought the employees of the store on the first floor were handling heavy packages of goods. Undertaker McDermott who slept in the rear of his shop last night also heard a noise in the hallway, but he paid no attention to it.

Simon Kroftin who conducts a grocery store at 10 Winter street, said this morning that Somers was in his place last night and remained there until shortly before 11 o'clock at which time he left for home. Mr. Kroftin said Somers as far as he could see had not taken a drink and was all right. The patrolman of the beat saw Somers shortly before 11 o'clock and he, like others, says he was all right.

May Have Fallen
It is possible that Somers met with an accident, for the stairs have a very steep incline and a bad turn at the top. Somers who was in the habit of climbing the stairs in a hurry, might have missed his footing at the curve at the top of the stairs and rolled down stairs with fatal result.

Those who believe there was foul play say that Somers must have been struck when he reached the top of the stairs, where a large hallway leads to the rear door of the building. However, Supt. Redmond Welch of the police department is of the opinion that the man fell down stairs and fractured his skull.

Spanish War Veteran
Somers was a veteran of the Spanish American war, having served in Co. I of the First New Hampshire National guard. He had been in this country a number of years and previous to coming to Lowell lived in Natick, N. H., for some time. A few years ago he conducted two provision stores, one in Cornhill street and another in Cambridge, and for the past four or five years he had been engaged in real estate and constable work, serving also as interpreter for Poles and Russians in the local police court.

He was 35 years of age, and leaves to mourn his loss besides a bereaved wife, two children, Willie and Mamie, his father and mother and several brothers and sisters in Russia.

Deceased was a constant attendant of the Lithuanian Catholic church and was very prominent in the St. Joseph society and other fraternal orders connected with the church.

The body is still at the morgue of Undertaker McDermott where it was viewed this morning by Medical Examiner Joe V. Meigs, who is to perform an autopsy this afternoon.

THE B. T. G. CLUB
The B. T. G. club held a delightful character party at the home of the Misses Agnes and Bertha Goss on Lincoln street. The cast of characters was as follows: "Mrs. Rumage," Agnes Goss; "Country Kid," B. Regnier; "Helen," H. Connor; "Milk Maid," A. Curry; "Sun Bonnet Sue," R. Welch; "Sis Hopkins," C. Stewart; "Clown," B. Fremont; "Miss Pina," J. Alway; "Mrs. Dingbat," E. Fremont; "Cowboy," H. Alway; "Anty Drudge," B. Connor; "Clown," B. Connor. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

THE MINERS' STRIKE

Both Parties Eager to Settle it

LONDON, March 6.—The continued meetings of the disputants in the coal trade was interpreted as indicating a growing desire of both parties to find a way out of the difficulties. While the formal reports give any evidence of material relief of the tension there is an increasing belief that the executive committee of the miners' federation received a mandate from the men during the week-end empowering it to negotiate with the government on the subject of the minimum wage schedule. Any relaxation of the rigidity of the miners' demands would offer a hopeful basis for a speedy agreement.

FIRE IN CLOSET

C.M.A.C. MEETING

Was Addressed by Rev. Fr. Ouellette, O.M.I.

A largely attended meeting of the C. M. A. C. was held last night with President Joseph Payette in the chair. Considerable business was transacted, and two new members, Mr. J. Chandonnet and Dr. J. E. Hobbard were initiated. The reports of the different committees were very favorable, and the members voted to contribute a substantial sum of money for a memorial in distress.

The meeting also voted unanimously to subscribe for The Sun. Present at the meeting was the chaplain, Rev. Jerome Ouellette, O. M. I., who at the close of the meeting addressed the members in the interest of the society. The reverend gentleman spoke at length on the affairs of the association. Referring to a statement made Sunday at a meeting of voters by a local trustee officer who said he looked after 5000 parochial school children without the least compensation, he said, that if any parish trustee officer was for looking after all the schools in the city without exception. Messrs. Joseph L. Lamoureux, Joseph E. Lamoureux and Joseph Harvey also made interesting remarks.

GENERAL ANDRADE

Assassinated by Some of His Soldiers

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, March 6.—General Julio Andrade, the military commander of Guayaquil, was assassinated at Quito last night by some of his soldiers.

General Julio Andrade was the chief figure in the suppression of the recent revolution in Ecuador after the death of President Estrada. He took command of the army supporting the central government which favored General Leonidas Plaza, who took over the reins of government on President Estrada's death. On several occasions he met and defeated the insurgent army under the command of General Flavio Alfaro, which supported the claims of General Montero, and finally suppressed the revolution by capturing Guayaquil. General Montero was tried by court martial at Guayaquil and then dragged into the streets, beheaded and burned by the angry populace. Other revolutionary leaders suffered a similar fate at Quito. The country then became quiet and arrangements were being made to elect a president for the next four years. General Plaza being nominated by the liberals.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Leading stocks opened with fractional declines today. United States Steel, U. P., and Reading dealt in moderately and some of the specialties were slightly under yesterday's closing prices. Canadian Pacific and Missouri Pacific were among the few stocks that showed opening gains. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie advanced 1 1/2 on the billit trading.

Buying orders were uncovered at the opening figures and the opening losses were made up. When this demand came, however, the list went off again with some of the important stocks selling lower than at the outset. American Tobacco and Amn. Snuff broke four points each.

Deal operators sold moderately again and undermined the list, causing the well known stocks to sag to the lowest. Several minor issues showed decided strength, particularly the Erie shares.

Prices picked up slightly in the later afternoon seeming more on account of a suspension of selling orders than of any confident demand. Standard mill stocks rose several points on the announcement of the increase in the dividend on the preferred stock.

The market closed heavy. Prices were almost motionless for long intervals in the final hour until just at the close, when dealings became more active and the market drooped.

WOMEN PICKETS

WILL HAVE TO FACE ANOTHER CHARGE IN LAWRENCE COURT

LAWRENCE, March 6.—Judge J. J. Mahoney at today's session of police court considered 13 cases in connection with the strike. The testimony against woman pickets charged with violating the city ordinances disclosed that there was evidence that they had prevented people from going to work and the court ordered the cases continued until tomorrow, when new charges will be brought.

Judge Mahoney announced that he would impose the maximum penalty of $100 fine on any of the defendants found guilty of violating the statute which prohibits anyone from preventing others from going to work.

Four women pickets were fined $10 each for violating city ordinances and two were fined $15 each for assault on operatives by seizing their lunch boxes and throwing them into the canal. Three men were fined $10 and one five dollars. Two male defendants were charged with throwing stones weighing eight pounds through a window.

THE LOOMFIXERS

AT A MEETING VOTED TO RETURN TO WORK

LAWRENCE, March 6.—Quietness prevailed during the hours preceding the opening of the textile mills today. Picketing was maintained by the strikers on a larger proportion than yesterday but there were no attempts at intimidation by members of the endles chain of picketers who lined the approaches to the mills. The strikers apparently maintained most of their strength. The most important addition to the ranks of returning operatives was the loomfixers, in accordance with action taken at a meeting last night to accept the five per cent. wage increase offered by the mill owners.

Twelve arrests were made by the police during the early hours of the day but all were for minor offenses, including the calling of "scab" by the pickets to several returning workers, and the carrying of a gun in their possession a mixture of pepper, sand and spic. It was estimated that during the past three days not more than 300 persons have resumed work in the factories. The main body of strikers, it is thought, intend to hold out for further concessions on the part of the mill operators. The latter, however, declare that in giving their employees a five per cent. increase they have gone beyond what they can actually afford and that a further increase in wages is out of the question.

Pickets, under the direction of Mrs. Annie Wetsenbach, held forth in South Lawrence the early morning but were driven on Essex street until they were dispersed by the police.

ATTACKED A TEXTILE MEETING
—IN LAWRENCE—
LAWRENCE, March 6.—Four hundred strikers marched through Broadway last night and attacked a textile meeting on a meeting of women and cotton yarn workers. The latter were in session to receive a charter as a branch of the United Textile Workers of America. A number of the strikers made their way into the hall, and a small riot started before they were driven out.

Meanwhile, a police call had been sent by word as the men were retreating from the hall a squad of officers, arrived and drove them away. Twelve

Commissioner Lynch Unable to Give Authority for Arrests

WASHINGTON, March 6.—C. F. Lynch, commissioner of public safety of Lawrence, who has charge of the police of that city, startled the house committee on rules yesterday by admitting on the witness stand that he did not know by what authority of law women and children were taken into custody at the time of the station riot, Feb. 24, when the police were forced to expel the mob from the station. Under questioning by Rep. Stanley, Lynch said none of the parents of the children had appeared to him against their being taken away, but he understood from one of the police captains that all of them did not have permission to leave.

"Did you see in the fall, after the struggle at the depot, women and children and women with babies in arms," asked Representative Stanley.

"Yes, I saw them there, but they were not in jail."

"How were they restrained? Weren't they free to go if they wanted to?"

"They were brought there to be held until their cases had been disposed of."

"They were brought there by the police, then, and did you ask any of these mothers whether they were incarcerated because they had tried to keep their children from being kidnapped or because they tried to send them away?"

"No, I did not," replied Lynch.

"By what warrant were these mothers and children there?"

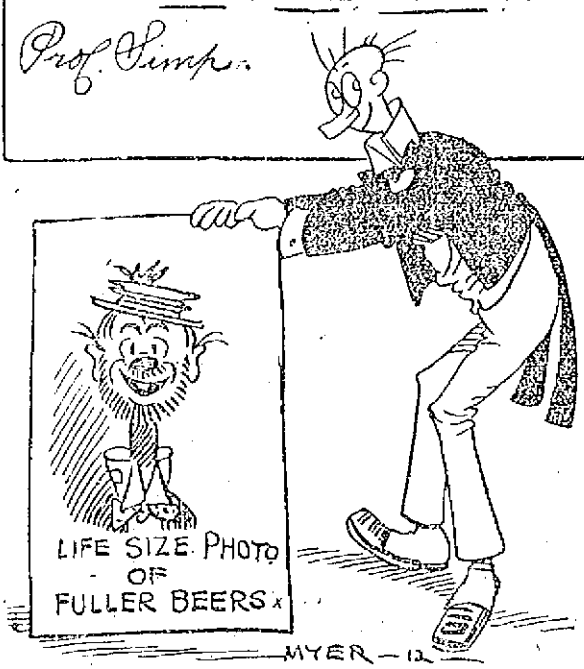

"I didn't know what the law was on the subject."

"Well, then, just why were they arrested?" persisted Mr. Stanley.

"I don't think they were, and I didn't know at the station whether they were mothers or not," replied Lynch.

THE MOTH BILL VETO

Was Sustained in House by Vote of 120 to 83

BOSTON, March 6.—In the Massachusetts house yesterday P. B. Carr of Boston moved to substitute for an adverse report a bill calling for the removal of the elevated structure between the North station and Sullivan square, Boston, and for the substitution thereof of a subway.

C. L. Carr of Boston opposed substitution. While recognizing that the structure has injured Charlestown, he said the problem presented is whether the people of Boston want to throw away the three and a half millions invested in the present structure.

Substitution prevailed on a rising vote, 50 to 34, with the understanding that it would then be referred to the next general court, and this disposition was then made of it, on P. B. Carr's motion.

Mr. Harrington of Fall River moved to substitute for an adverse report a bill providing that the police and license commission in Fall River, at present appointed by the governor, shall hereafter be elected by the people.

He said the matter was submitted to the voters of the city last fall, and by a majority of 100 they favored an elective commission, and he believed the fundamental principle of home rule should be applied.

Substitution was favored by Parks of Fall River and opposed by Mulvey and Lebeck of that city and by Bliss of Malden. Substitution was defeated on a rising vote, 50 to 65.

Moth Veto Sustained

Gov. Ross veto of the bill appropriating $150,000 to be expended in three years for suppressing gypsy and brownish moths was next taken up. Mr. Washburn of Worcester contended that the governor was inconsistent in approving a bill appropriating $500,000 to be expended in five years for moths, while vetoing this bill.

Mr. Bean of Cambridge held that there is no real comparison between constructive highway work and destructive moth work. On a roll call the veto was sustained by a vote of 120 to 83, a two-thirds vote being necessary to pass the bill over the veto.

Gov. Ross' special message transmitting his approval of the request of the state board of charity for appropriations on ways and means and public charitable institutions.

Mr. Mulvey of Fall River moved to substitute for an adverse report a bill providing that in civil actions which are appealed to the superior court the plaintiff may incur the cost of damages. Mr. Sanborn of Lawrence opposed the bill.

CHINAMAN AND GIRL

Were Placed Under Arrest at Newburyport Yesterday

NEWBURYPORT, March 6.—A Chinaman giving the name of Henry Ching Len of Portsmouth, N. H., and a white girl, who said she was Josie McDonald, were taken to the police station here yesterday afternoon and held for the Portsmouth police.

Shortly after noon Patrolman James P. Murphy saw the girl walking along Pleasant street, with the Chinaman trailing along a few feet behind. As the man came up to him he asked the policeman where he could find a minister, saying that he wanted to get married. Acceding to the girl, Murphy asked if this was so, and she said that it was. She said that the Chinaman was the keeper of the restaurant in Portsmouth, and that she had been working there.

By threats she said she had prevailed on her to come over here and get married to him. She said that they had been here a week ago and filed their intentions at city hall and called over to have the coroner's certificate, but did not know where to find a minister. She said then that she did not want to marry him but supposed she would have to as he had threatened to have her arrested.

Inquiry of the Portsmouth police not only showed that the man conducted

JOHN C. BURKE DEAD

Well Known Lawyer Passed Away at His Home Last Night

It will be with sorrow that the friends of John C. Burke will hear of his death which occurred last night at his home, 23 Eleventh street, after a lingering illness of several months. Deceased was taken ill some time ago and was removed to a New York hospital, where everything was done to save his life. This was of no avail, however, and after being removed to his home in this city a few weeks ago, he passed away last night at 11:30 o'clock.

He was born in Leeds, Eng., August 5, 1851, coming to this country when very young and spending his early life in Vermont. Twenty-two years ago he came to Lowell and became one of the firm of Marshall, Hamblett & Burke, now known as Burke and Corbett. He is survived by a son, George W., and a daughter, Julia Lillian.

John C. Burke is descended from a sturdy ancestry. His father, Walter Burke, was born in 1825. His mother, Kate Riley, was born in 1824. At the age of ten months his parents emigrated to this country, locating at New York, where his father was employed in one of the large commercial houses as a bookkeeper. The family remained in New York until the breaking out of the Civil war, when they removed to Albany, N. Y.

Mr. Burke attended the public schools of Albany until he was 13 years of age, when he entered the employ of the Portland & Ogdensburg railroad. He rose rapidly in the ranks and became a successful engineer, but resigned to broaden his education, and entered Cranston academy. Feeling the call for the law, he entered the law office of W. W. Mills at Cranston, and was admitted to practice in 1879. He practiced in Newport as well as Albany, N. Y., before removing to Lowell, where he entered into partnership with Hon. J. N. Marshall and M. L. Hamblett. The firm later became Burke, Marshall & Corbett, and still later took the name which it now bears, Burke & Corbett.

Mr. Burke was married to Miss Gertrude Dool of Albany, N. Y., Dec. 23, 1881. He was a democrat in politics, and during President Cleveland's campaign, he made a great reputation as a ready and effective speaker.

The Traders National bank will close Thursday afternoon, March 7th, at 1 o'clock, out of respect to his passing. John C. Burke, whose funeral services occur during the afternoon.

PLUMBERS COMPLAIN

Say That Unlicensed Men Are Doing Work

The board of health at its regular meeting held yesterday afternoon went over the plans for a sanitary in Paige street. The plans were prepared by City Engineer Stephen Kearney and the board voted to refer them to the city council with the recommendation that they be adopted.

Joseph Flynn appeared before the board to tell why he kept meat and fish in front of his store exposed to the air. He said it was his purpose to discontinue the practice though he believed he had a right to do it if he wanted to. The board felt that Mr. Flynn desired to make a test case of it and voted to take the matter into court, provided the evidence obtained would warrant such action.

Mr. Lorange, representing the Saunders market, said the practice of displaying fish and meats in the open had been abandoned at the Saunders market.

The city engineer's report on the proposed sanitary in Paige street was received.

Mr. Kearney said it would be possible to use only one side of the street because of the depth of the sewer, and the only change in the street would be a four-inch gas pipe and in the conduits of the Lowell Electric Light corporation. The cost of excavation would be extremely high, because of the ledge in that locality. The entire cost was estimated to be $15,000, and the cost of maintenance, annually, $4000. Three men and three women would have to be employed.

Accompanying Mr. Kearney's statement were plans and it was voted to turn the same over to the city council with the recommendation that they be adopted.

Alfred Rodenburg petitioned for permission to build a stable in Canine street, and favorable action was taken.

Martin Flaherty made a complaint because of an alleged nuisance constituted by a stable of the heirs of James Walsh in Highland avenue, and a report by Inspector Connors to the effect that the stable was in good condition was received and placed on file.

The opinion of the city solicitor to the effect that the mayor is the administrative head of the board of health was adopted as a part of the board's records.

Plumber's Union Complains

There was a delegation present from the Lowell Plumbers' union to discuss certain allegations relative to non-compliance with the board's rules regulating plumbing.

Secretary Shepard said he wrote the letter asking for a hearing because of representations made that a certain firm had installed plumbing in a building by men not licensed.

James H. Corcoran said he saw the work going on in the Glidden building and the man engaged was not a licensed plumber. It was only a small job.

Mr. Joseph Meane of the Shaw Plumbing company, himself licensed, said he took a helper to the Glidden building and after performing some work, he instructed the helper to work on the "trap," and it was when this was going on, Mr. Corcoran happened along. One trap was set in place, a second was not. Mr. Meane finished the job.

Mr. Shaw spoke of the difference of opinion relative to the work a helper may do under the supervision of a journeyman plumber, and he expressed the opinion that a helper may properly be employed in this manner.

Mr. Shepard said Local 12 of Boston had successfully presented a case, in which a helper had been employed as in this case, though the action has been taken to a higher court.

TWO MEN ARRESTED

Big Plot to Sell Jewels Unearthed

CHICAGO, March 6.—A jewelry conspiracy, which has cost the High National Watch company more than $20,000 during the last year, came to light yesterday with the arrest of two of the company's employees in the Grand Pacific hotel.

The men arrested, who are alleged to have been the ringleaders, are Francis Walley and John Cafferly, jewel setters for the watch company. The arrest was made by private detectives, after it was learned that the men were seeking to sell 17,000 watch jewels to John Worley, a Wattham, Mass., jeweler.

Worley is said to have refused to buy the goods unless a bill of sale could be furnished. He was followed from Wattham by an operative of the detective agency, who took a room next to that occupied by him. No sooner had the 17,000 jewels been produced and the haggling over the price begun than the trade was interrupted.

Worley, who is said to have been in no way connected with the alleged swindle, was allowed to return to his home in Wattham, according to the officials of the watch company, the jewels are worth $1 apiece. The alleged price sought by Walley and Cafferly was only 3 cents for each jewel.

McFARLAND WON BOUT

"One Round" Hogan Put Up a Weak Argument

NEW YORK, March 5.—Paddy McFarland of Chicago added "One Round" Hogan of California to his long string of ring victims by outpointing him by a wide margin at the Fairmount A. C. last night. In ever session of the ten rounds McFarland was the master, smothering and planting blows to Hogan's face and body, scarcely without a return.

"Peerless Paddy failed to pack the punch," one of the fans said after the fight, "but picked his face with uppercuts," and this told the story of the fight. It was merely a big dance for Paddy to outpoint Hogan. He danced in and out of Hogan's swings and hit him as hard and as often as he pleased. Hogan was like a doll in his hands, and during the 10 rounds failed to land eight effective punches.

No had that Paddy has fought recently was as easy to solve as Hogan, that many thought he could have scored a knockout. It appeared that he was holding back a little to let Hogan last the 10 rounds. The Chicago man landed enough blows to knock out six men if he had used more steam, but he seemed to delight in holding Hogan paralyzed.

The bout began with McFarland leading with two lefts to the face and an attempt at a right swing, which missed and sent McFarland to the floor by the force of his own blow. He was up in a second, however, and began fighting his man all over the ring and into his corner with lefts to the face and right uppercuts.

He used this combination repeatedly throughout the bout, and seemed to have Hogan puzzled. The Californian hit only at short range and did not put a single straight blow in his second. McFarland landed to the head in the third, and Hogan returned weakly. In the fourth Hogan started for the first time to mix it with his man, but stood him off with lefts to the face and right uppercuts, which he also used effectively through the fifth, sixth and seventh.

In the eighth Hogan made his best showing, landing a right swing which brought blood from McFarland's nose. Paddy then went at his man and punched him all about the ring. In the ninth and tenth the Chicago boy used his left to face and the right uppercut, and at the end he had Hogan plainly weak.

DE CLUCAS SHOWS BEST
MALDEN, March 6.—The Commercial A. C. held boxing bouts last evening at its rooms on Commercial street, the attendance being more than 600.

Paddy De Clucas of Boston and Shadow Morris of the U. S. battleship Nebraska met in an eight-round bout. De Clucas had the best of it all through.

Rupert Donnelly of Malden and Young McJeffrey fought six rounds for a draw. Joe Beaudreau of Medford and Frank Barrett of Cambridge also went to a draw in six rounds.

Kid Murphy and Young King, both of Cambridge, were booked to box six rounds, but King quit in the first. Duane was substituted for King and he had the best of it in four rounds with Murphy.

No decisions were announced by the referee.

CY GOODWIN GETS A DRAW
NEWBURYPORT, March 6.—Cy Goodwin of Boston and Johnny Hill of New Brunswick, N. J., fought eight rounds to a draw last evening at the Newburyport A. C. In the semi-final, Billy Gibbons of Lawrence put Jack Burke away in the second round of what was scheduled for a six-round bout. Young Adams of Newburyport and Kid Welch of Lynn evened up matters in four rounds, and Young Driscoll took the count in the second round with Young Claus of Lowell.

LEACH CROSS WON

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 6.—Leach Cross of New York, who knocked out Joe Bedell twice in one week last month, slaughtered Billy Allen of Syracuse here last night. Referee Charley White refused to let the men come together after the fifth round, as Allen was plainly out of the running.

Joe Goldberg substituted for Kid Andrews of Buffalo, outboxing Clemons of Albany in the semifinal.

FAREWELL SURPRISE

Miss Grace Donahue of 69 Sixth street was surprised last evening when she was presented a mesh bag and two gold pieces. She will be missed by her wide circle of friends. She will leave Tuesday for Charlevoix, Mich., where she will be the guest of Mrs. R. Emery, formerly Miss Elizabeth Ray of Lowell. The first of April she will start for California where she will be the guest of her brother, Daniel E. formerly of Lowell and now of Stockton, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorne received a large number of handsome gifts, expressive of the high esteem and regard of their friends, among them being a beautiful chafing dish from the Ladies' degree staff of Chelmsford.

Refreshments were served in the dining room, which was prettily decorated for the occasion, and was in charge of Mrs. John Chalmers, assisted by Misses Annie Maddocks, Marjorie Hadley and Helen Ripley. Crutchfield catered.

Mrs. Margaret Sloan had charge of the punch bowl, and Master Raymond Hermon acted as page.

There were out-of-town guests present from Arlington, Brookline and Somerville, Springfield, Me., and New York city.

Music for the occasion was furnished by the Filadelfia orchestra of which Miss Harriet Mansur is leader.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Crutchfield of Brookline, who were married on the same day as Mr. and Mrs. Thorne were among those present.

BOY ARRESTED HERE

Came from Chelsea, Going to Lawrence

Samuel Magown, a lad of 14 years who resides at 3 Cedar place, Chelsea, arrived in this city this morning on his way to Lawrence, where he said he intended to look into the strike situation and probably sell papers.

He reached Lowell shortly after ten o'clock on an inbound stage car from Boston, and while loitering around Merrimack square was taken into custody by Patrolman Philip D. Murphy.

When brought to the police station he admitted that he had left his home, but stated that his father is dead and his mother, Mary E., goes out to do washing and he has been trying to assist her in keeping the house. According to the statement which he made to a representative of The Sun his mother gave him 25 cents to go from Chelsea to Lawrence to sell papers and send money to her.

He later told another story which appeared to be contradictory. The boy was cold and hungry and after members of this department had gathered a collection for him he was given a good meal. This afternoon he was returned to his home.
